RUNAWAY IN HANOVER ST.; SCORE IN PERIL; DRIVER HURT

A score of persons leaped into doorways today as a team of horses galloped out of Endicott street into an iron pole and a show case before the J. H. White's Sons' hardware store, No. 148 Hanover street.

Robert McGillivary, twenty-eight, of No. 89 Chelsea street, East Boston, the driver, was thrown from his seat and jammed between the centre pole and the iron post. He suffered a four-inch cut of the face and cuts about the ear.

The horses started when McGillivary dropped one of his reins while on Union street. A number of women were in the path.

Actress Fails to Appear to Contest Plea for Divorce

Dr. Albert Pfeifer of the State Board of Health, was today granted a decree of divorce from his wife, Alexandra Carlisle, the actress.

Miss Carlisle did not appear in Suffolk Probate Court to contest the divorce.

Dr. Pfeifer testified they were married in London in 1912 and that she left him in April, 1920. He said he made repeated requests for her to leave the stage and come back to live with him, and that she refused to do this. He said she failed to answer letters and other communications.

Alexandra Carlisle

Counsel for Miss Carlisle said he had nothing to say in the matter of the divorce. The only point in which his client was interested, he said, was the custody of the five-year-old child which had been adopted by the Pfeifers.

It had been agreed, he said, between both parties, that Miss Carlisle was to have the custody of the child. The only point at issue was as to Dr. Pfeifer's privileges in seeing the child as to stated intervals.

Judge Dolan instructed counsel for both sides to arrive at an agreement as to the specific times during the year in which Dr. Pfeifer could see his adopted daughter.

ACCUSE FORMER PRIEST OF $200 STOCK FRAUD

A priest, in the livery of his estate, was arraigned today before Judge Ahearn in Roxbury court charged with the larceny of $200.

James Gillespie of No. 109 Alexander street, Roxbury, was the complainant against Rev. Cornelius J. Herlihy, who was ousted from his parish in Natick some time ago because of his reported activities along the lines of selling stock.

Several complaints are said to have been made, but no action was taken because in each instance the stock alleged to have been sold by Herlihy actually existed. Gillespie charges that the certificate of Skaraway Chief copper stock sold him by Herlihy was fraudulent.

Herlihy pleaded not guilty and the case continued.

"Two-Gun" Film Hero Admits Meetings With Miss MacCauley in Los Angeles

By DON H. EDDY

Los Angeles, May 28.—Bill Hart sat on the foot of the bedstead in his home here and told the story of his association with Elizabeth MacCauley.

She was one of the first Bill Hart fans," said Bill, talking so rapidly his drawl got all mixed up. "A long time ago, when I used to answer my own fan mail, I got glowing letters from her. We used to talk about them—my sister, Mary, and I. I never had a college education; I didn't really understand how perfect-

"BOOTLEGGING" OF ALIENS SCANDAL, SAYS DAVIS

Washington, May 28.—The "bootlegging" of aliens into the United States via land is a scandal," Secretary James J. Davis told President Harding today during a White House conference concerning ways to halt it. Not only at seaports, but across the Mexican and Canadian borders aliens are pouring into the United States in increasing numbers, Secretary Davis said, and it has been found almost impossible to check them.

BELIEVE NURSE WAS POISONED; $70,000 WILL CUTS PARENTS

Toronto, May 28.—Physicians employed to make a chemical analysis of the vital organs of Miss Emma Burns, trained nurse who died in Post Graduate Hospital, New York, and whose body was exhumed because her parents suspected she had been poisoned, said today it would be three weeks before they could make a report.

Traces of pneumonia, of which the nurse was said to have died, have been found, but possibility of poisoning still exists, it is said.

Miss Burns' parents acted when they learned of the disposition she had made in her will of a $70,000 estate. The will ignored the parents.

WILL SEND BLAMFIELD BACK TO HOME IN ENGLAND

Charles Blamfield, recently arrested for having in his possession firemaking machinery, explosives and incendiary literature, will be deported to England, where he came from six years ago.

This was decided following a conference in Judge Dowd's court today, at which an official of the immigration bureau was present with the necessary deportation papers.

Blamfield was taken to court from the Psycopathic Hospital. After he had been under observation there for some time, it was found that he was "an unsafe person to be at large."

San Francisco.—David Rich, 69 years old, a member of the firm of A. J. Rich & Co., is dead. He was largely instrumental in bringing the Panama Pacific Exposition here in 1915.

BILL HART ADMITS MEETINGS WITH ELIZABETH MacCAULEY

ly rhetorical they were. But Mary went to college; she knew.

Invited to Dinner

"One day in December, 1916, I came home from work and Mary told me that Boston woman, who wrote the letters, was in town. Naturally I said:

"'Invite her to dinner.' So we had dinner—the three of us.

"Then Mary went abroad and on the day she sailed she got a great big bunch of flowers from the woman, and Mary made me promise to thank her personally. What could be more natural than to invite her to dinner. I did.

... invited her to bring ... and they came on the ... night, a whole automobile full of ... As I remember, there was a doctor and his wife and a lot of children, maybe a half dozen. But Miss MacCauley said the others weren't going to dinner, so she arranged to meet them in about an hour. We went and had dinner and went right back to where those people were, and I didn't see her again for a long time.

"But she lived somewhere upon Orange street with another girl. As I used to drive up Orange street on my way to work, she would be outside leading her dog up and down on a leash. She'd wave. I'd stop and talk for a minute.

"I suppose that happened maybe half a dozen or a dozen times. And that was absolutely the extent of my relationship with her.

"So I reckon you can imagine my feelings when, about five years ago, she first started this campaign against me. Four nights running, they had me up in the district attorney's office—not putting me through the third degree or anything, you understand, but just talking to me. It nearly drove me crazy. But my last words up there were these:

Refused to Pay

"'Mr. District Attorney, you can do anything you want to with me. I'm like a trussed steer. But you can't make me, and nobody on earth can make me pay that woman one cent, not one nickel. Because she's wrong.'

"And that was the way it was left.

"That was bad enough. But when it came out in the newspapers here a while ago, well—"

He said he had not made any plans about going to work. He spoke of money.

"I've made millions," he said, waving his long arms. "Millions and millions and millions. And I've got enough left to go by. But listen to me—

"All my trouble cost me $553,000 and some odd beans besides last year. Think that over. I can't keep that pace very long."

Baby's Mother Tells How She Was Duped

Mrs. Lucy Furigo, actual mother of "Bobby," falsely said to be the son of "Bill" Hart and Elizabeth MacCauley, told the Boston American today how Miss MacCauley gained custody of her child.

She also told how she found her son, dangerously ill, in a Cambridge hospital, suffering with water on the brain.

"It was I and not "Bill" Hart who was victimized by Elizabeth MacCauley," Mrs. Furigo declared. "I met Miss MacCauley through an advertisement in a Sunday paper." Mrs. Furigo is twenty-nine years old. With her husband, she is employed at the country estate of Henry L. Higginson of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Company, at Lincoln. Living with her is her six-year-old boy, the "bogus" baby whom Miss MacCauley tried to pass for the son of "Bill" Hart.

Advertised for Baby

"I am thankful Mr. Hart is cleared of the charges made by Miss MacCauley," she said. It is hard to express how angry I was when I first read in the papers what Miss MacCauley had done. That was the first time I realized why Miss MacCauley had wanted Bobby.

"I was having a hard time of it in 1918. On Sunday morning, I think it was about the eighth of September, I determined to find a home for Bobby where he would have advantages I could not provide. I was working in Brookline then.

"In the Sunday papers that day, I found an advertisement that seemed to me to be just about what I was looking for. It read:

"'WANTED—A baby boy about one year old; Protestant. Address letter to J. M. Anderson, Malden, Mass.'

"A little more than a week after I answered the ad, I met by appointment a woman who called herself Miss MacCauley.

"I learned that Mrs. Anderson, a woman who boared babies from time to time, had inserted the advertisement for Miss MacCauley. As I look back over the unusual incidents, I recall Miss MacCauley seldom signed her name to a document or attended to a transaction herself.

Posed as Wealthy

"She didn't even see the adoption papers.

"She posed as a wealthy woman, and went through all the motions of adopting Bobby, except signing the papers. Then she borrowed him on approval, and fled to the West and tried to foist him off on "Bill" Hart.

"When she first saw Bobby, Miss MacCauley seemed to like him. She said she was glad he was a little blond baby. I understand that now—she is a blond herself. She seemed pleased that I was an Episcopalian.

"I had no reason then to doubt that Miss MacCauley was a fine woman. She appeared very sympathetic and lovable. Everything about her seemed aristocratic.

"I was much impressed with her learning, and well I knew when I read the papers two months ago about Miss MacCauley, the Wellesley graduate, who was charging William S. Hart with the paternity of her son, that it was the Miss MacCauley who had borrowed my child that my 'Bobby' she said was hers and Bill Hart's, was really my child. I was stunned to think of the terrible thing that was done with the use of my child without my knowledge.

Took Bobby Away

"A short time later I received a letter from Miss MacCauley and we met by appointment in the Boston Public Library.

"We talked over the matter of adopting the baby. I felt very sad and upset. I began to cry. I could not find my handkerchief and Miss MacCauley handed me one of hers. It was black and white and had her initials embroidered in one corner. I only destroyed this handkerchief a few months ago.

"As a result of this conversation, about November 4, 1918, Miss MacCauley asked me to take the baby to Mrs. Wilson's home in Cambridge. Before I did so, an examination was made of him to see if he was in good physical condition. I told Mrs. Wilson to be sure and notify the State House as I was informed this would have to be done, either by myself or the person who had charge of the baby. Mrs. Wilson said she would give this notice. This marked the day when my 'Bobby' passed from my care to Miss MacCauley.

"I later received word that another blood test and examination was made of 'Bobby' and that everything was satisfactory. Later, about November 17, 1918, I received another letter from Miss MacCauley asking me to call at the office of a Boston attorney, representing Miss MacCauley, to sign papers that would be prepared. I went to see the attorney and signed, as I thought then, an assent to the baby's adoption by Miss MacCauley.

"She then left for the West with Bobby. When I did not hear from her I grew desperate. I felt that something was wrong. So I wrote a letter to No. 9 Wellman street, Brookline.

Had Premonition

"Miss MacCauley's mother, now dead, opened this letter and called me on the phone. She was very much upset and excited and asked me a number of questions. I merely told her she would have to get this information from her daughter.

"The latter part of January, 1918, I received a postcard from Miss MacCauley, which read:

"I shall probably be away longer than at first expected. Living in mild sunshine daily—lovely—and good for my friendly little traveler."

It was during this period from the latter part of March to November, 1918, that Miss MacCauley was in Los Angeles playing the part of sweet, gentle mother, who had been deserted by the father of her child.

It was shortly after the return of Miss MacCauley to Brookline that she returned the bay to Mrs. Furigo. Miss MacCauley had failed to palm the bogus baby off on Hart. She no longer had any use for it. According to the papers she had actually signed, she had taken the baby on approval in view of adoption.

At this juncture Mrs. Furigo continued her amazing story:

"On April 24, 1919, I received a telephone call from Miss MacCauley asking me to meet her at a certain hospital immediately. I went there at once to meet her. 'Bobby' was ill with water on the brain. His head was swollen to almost twice its size. Miss MacCauley handed me the baby and told me to formally enter him at the hospital, thus avoiding attaching her name to the hospital records.

"But she told me she would pay the bills for his care while at the hospital. Then, she explained, she could not adopt the baby because of his physical condition.

"Bobby was in the hospital four weeks and Miss MacCauley refused to pay the bills. I had to pay them myself. I still have the receipts.

"I have never spoken with Miss MacCauley since that day at the hospital. I saw her one day, however, by chance, in a Boston department store. She did not see me, and I didn't want to see her.

"I put her out of mind and thought no more of her until I read about her in the newspapers last March and learned what this crafty woman had tried to do with my baby.

"I am happily married. Bobby has grown up a well and healthy child out here in the country."

FEAR THAT AMUNDSEN MAY FLY IN CIRCLES

Copenhagen, May 28.—Fear that Roald Amundsen, who is to attempt a flight across the North Pole next month, may encounter unknown magnetic currents in the funer Arctic Zone which will upset his compass and cause him to fly in circles, is expressed by experts writing in the Berlingske Tidende. They hope the explorer will choose a clear day for his feat, thus enabling him to dispose of his compass and take his position by astronomic observations.

GERMAN STRIKERS WARNED

Railroad Men Must Resume Work or Be Deported, Says General Degoutte

Berlin, May 28 (AP).—General De Goutte, French commander in the Ruhr, has issued a new order to the German railway men to resume work under the French within forty-eight hours.

All under sixty years of age who fail to do so will be expelled from the occupied territory while those more than sixty may consider themselves dismissed.

Berlin, May 28 (A. P.)—Two million miners and tens of thousands of metal workers are now on strike in the Ruhr.

According to a special dispatch to the Vossiche Zeitung, although these figures are probably grossly overestimated, it is believed that undoubtedly every mine centre in the Ruhr is idle as a result of the tactics of the Communists, who are visiting the pits and forcibly ejecting the workers.

A vote taken in the Bochum district showed that a majority of the miners favored resumption of work, but Communist pickets are stationed at some of the pits with fixed bayonets to prevent the miners from descending.

No further disorders since are reported and the casualties for the week-end stand at seven persons killed and ninety-three wounded. The food shortage is beginning to be felt in the disturbed area, especially at Gelsenkirchen.

It is said that the French commandant at Bochum has refused to allow the police force or the fire

Mortgage to Cover All Germany Proposed

Berlin, May 28 (AP).—Germany's reparations program, as it is now outlined, will literally be constructed from "the ground up," for it will rest primarily on a nation-wide real estate mortgage.

What promises to become the greatest hypothecation of land in the history of economics will eventually encompass every square inch of German soil, which will be made to pay tribute to Germany's former foes for a period of thirty years.

The assessment will be on a basis of 50 per cent. of the present gold values. Five hundred million gold marks annually will flow into the Reich's reparations melting pot from this source during the first few years. The ultimate yearly total will approximate one billion gold marks, the increase depending upon the promptness with which metropolitan real estate can be subjected to the mortgaging process.

French Evacuate German Dye Works

Hoechst-Hesse-Nassau, May 28 (AP).—The French troops having evacuated the dye works here, it was decided to resume work in the plant today.

The extensive German dye works at Ludwigshafen and Hoechst were occupied by the French on May 15. It was announced that the occupation was for the purpose of seizing and removing such quantities of dye stuffs as were due France and Belgium under the peace treaty and which the Germans had failed to deliver.

WOMAN FLIER SETS NEW ALTITUDE MARK

Los Angeles, May 28.—An altitude record for women fliers was set here when Mlle. Andree Peyre, French aviatrix, reached a height of 15,000 feet above Rogers' Airport, according to officials of the Aero Club of Southern California.

30 "Auto Spooners" Caught by Police in Lexington

Chief Edward Leavitt of the Lexington police has declared war on "spooners" in that town. Over the week-end he and Patrolmen Walter H. Kew and William C. O'Leary caught no less than thirty drivers who had parked their machines along the side of the road without lights.

Chief Leavitt said he found spooning couples in the cars. He will send the names of these operators to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank Goodwin. Some of these operators may lose their licenses.

STRING TIED TO STILLMAN'S PRESENTS

Atlantic City, May 27.—James A. Stillman was an "Indian giver," according to beautiful Mrs. Florence Leeds, and the gifts he made her were all restricted, she declared today.

"Flo" Leeds.

"Every gift of his had a string attached to it," she said. "He wanted to be very sure that anything he gave me should revert to him in case of my death.

"He was very much opposed to my family. He often said he would do everything in his power to prevent them from enjoying any of his wealth. He was determined to keep it from them.

"What I thought in mind, he sought to make me sign a provision that in the event of my death any money which he gave me would go back to him. He sent his lawyers to me with this request.

"The provision also contained a release from every moral obligation toward our little son, Jay. I refused to sign this, although he offered $50,000 as the price of his freedom."

"I have done everything to escape notice while here," she continued. "That is why I registered as Mrs. Lincoln. I am not well."

Her brown eyes snapped with anger as she denied rumors about going on the stage again.

"Never! Never! Who ever started that rumor is completely wrong. I could not put myself on exhibition."

8,000 KLANSMEN MEET AND DEFY NEW LAW

New York, May 28. (I. N. S.)—The Ku Klux Klan is determined to retain its veil of secrecy. Despite the Walker bill, the recently passed State law which makes compulsory publication of names of members of secret orders, this determination became known Saturday night when 8,000 Klansmen gathered under the fiery cross at Eastport, Lond Island, and swore eternal secrecy, despite the law, and augmented the Klan's membership by initiating 1,827 new members.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 28.—A statement issued by the bankruptcy trustees on the affairs of the L. R. This means that the 60,000 stockholders are owners of surplus assets of $3,089,144.99, all that remains of investments which are said to have amounted to more than $20,000,000.

WOULD-BE SUICIDE FIGHTS RESCUERS

New York, May 28.—George Midrelli, a hotel employe, leaped into the East River from a scow moored at a dock at the foot of East Fifty-first street. A patrolman went after him in a boat. BIG FORCE PICKET IN BROCKTON

Few Strikers Return to Work; $500,000 Wage Loss So Far; New Arbitration Rejected

Brockton, May 28.—The predicted breaking of the shoe workers' strike today failed to come.

Instead of the expected rush of strikers back to their positions there was only an apathetic response at the most of the factories.

The leaders of the new union were greatly encouraged by the reports sent in by the 1,500 pickets who were on duty from 5 o'clock in the morning and issued optimistic statements to their members.

The manufacturers appeared satisfied with the showing and made an announcement that they were "more hopeful now than at any time since the beginning of the strike."

$500,000 WAGE LOSS.

The banks today estimated that the strike has caused a wage loss of $500,000 and a curtailment of shoe production of approximately 10,000 cases.

Joseph Lacouture, president of the new union, and Edward H. Talbot, the secretary, issued this statement:

"The reopening of the Brockton shoe factories by the manufacturers this morning was a total failure.

"Reports of pickets at all factories are that there are less employes working at the present thus than at any time during the strike.

"The enthusiasm of the workers is shown by the large number of pickets on duty, some of whom work on the line as early as 5.00 o'clock.

"The conditions have proved to the public and to the manufacturers that the workers are more determined than ever."

PICKETS REPORT.

Pickets at the Diamond Shoe Company reported that only 11 employes returned to work there today and they said that several of this number were bosses. One was a girl whose father led her in by the hand in face of her protests.

Miss Cora Sperling, secretary of the stitchers, declared that the members of her organization were more cheerful today than at any time since the strike started.

Mrs. Ida Metcalfe, the financial secretary, reported that the treasury was growing larger and that funds were coming in hourly.

The statement invited the manufacturers to meet the strikers. A local arbitration board was demanded, to consist of one representative of the strikers, one of the manufacturers and a third to be selected by those two.

The Manufacturers' Association replied again that it could treat only with members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

LOWELL SEES U. S. LACKING ITS PLACE

Kansas City, Mo., May 28.—The United States has not taken the prominent place in the thought of the world, which its material progress might warrant, A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, said here at a banquet closing a two-day annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs.

CLARA PHILLIPS

CLARA PHILLIPS NOW DECLARES SHE'S INNOCENT

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, May 28, (AP).—A message declaring her innocence has been received by the Associated Press correspondent here from Clara Phillips, convicted of murder in California, now on her way back to the United States, in charge of American officers.

The message, sent from Puerto Cortez just before the steamer Copan with the recaptured prisoner on board, sailed thence for New Orleans, read as follows:

"Please say I intend to give the world the truth about the Alberta Meadows case—that I am innocent of that awful crime of which I was unjustly convicted and that the opportunity will soon come for me to prove it."

(Signed) "Clara Phillips."

Notwithstanding a decree issued by the Supreme Court ordering that Clara Phillips be set free, she was turned over to the American deputy sheriffs from California and embarked at Puerto Cortez for New Orleans, where the vessel is expected to arrive today.

$50,000 LOSS IN WORCESTER FIRE

Worcester, May 28.—The old police headquarters building on Waldo street was destroyed by fire today. The Worcester Post of the American Legion and the auxiliary and Colonel E. B. Stanway Camp of Spanish War Veterans and its auxiliary, which have been using the place as headquarters, lost everything they had in the way of equipment and records. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

The lower part of the building was used by the police department as quarters for the motor cycle corps and the blaze started in this section. The flames shot up through the woodwork in the upper stories. The roof fell in and the south wall collapsed.

HIS FIRST ADMISSION OF DEFEAT

Republican Leader Issues Formal Statement to All His Followers

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.

Dublin, May 28 (AP).—A document addressed by Eamon de Valera to all ranks in the Republican army, calling for discontinuance of the armed struggle, has been taken by the Free State authorities from a captured Republican leader, it was announced today.

Dublin, May 28. (I. N. S.)—Eamon De Valera, leader of the Irish Republic, proclaimed in a letter to the Republican commandant of the Dublin area, that "it is no longer possible to defend the Irish Republic by fighting.

This was De Valera's first formal admission of defeat. His discouragement was shown some weeks ago when he issued an order to the Republicans to cease firing and made a peace offer to the Free State government.

De Valera is the last of the prominent Republican leaders at large. The others have either been killed or imprisoned. De Valera is still in hiding, but it is understood that the Free State could have seized him at any time within the past few months.

The Republican army has dwindled to a mere handful and most of the country is tranquil.

It is reported here that the Free State government will launch a 25,000,000 pounds ($121,500,000) loan next month. The bonds will be in denominations of £5 to £500 and will be quickly subscribed in Ireland.

UNPREPAREDNESS IS SCORED BY COOLIDGE

Bridgeport, Conn., May 28.—"We want no more war. You men and women who have seen it or have been engaged in it want war least of all. We want peace with justice and honor. But to leave a nation unprotected is to be guilty of a crime against the world," declared Vice-President Calvin Coolidge in his Memorial Sunday address at the service in Poli's Theatre, held under the auspices of the United Patriotic Societies, Inc.

CHINESE OFFER ARMY PLACES TO BANDITS

Tientsin, May 28 (AP).—Advices from Tsaochwang say J. B. Powell, American newspaper man of Shanghai, returned there from the bandits' camp at Paotzuku, accompanied by two secretaries supplied by the bandits, presumably to negotiate for the release of the foreign captives held in the Paotzuku hills.

The Tuchun's counter-proposals are that there be no further withdrawal of troops from around the bandit camp; that one bandit be admitted to the Chinese army for each rifle surrendered by the bandits, but that at least 1,000 rifles be guaranteed; that one month's pay be advanced to bandits joining the army, plus all arrears involved; that the bandits be provisioned until all who are accepted into the army be enlisted, and that the agreement be signed by foreign guarantors, the local gentry and merchants.

FIND NEW DRUG FOR CURE OF PARESIS

An event of the greatest importance to medical science is announced in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

It has to do with tryparsamid, a new drug synthesized at the Rockefeller Institute, and said to be the first remedy ever discovered for paresis.

It was discovered by a woman physician—Dr. Louise Pearce of New York—for ten years a member of the staff of the Rockefeller Institute. The discovery was made by Dr. Pearce while she was in the Belgian Congo treating sleeping sickness.

The drug is primarily successful against the blood taint that has ravaged the earth for eight centuries. It is not yet for sale.

Scientists or the University of Wisconsin, who have been working with tryparsamid since 1919, made public in the Journal the results of their experiments. They stated:

"It has been found that old and indolent lesions disappeared promptly under treatment with tryparsamid. Patients showed a marked physical improvement and positive blood wasserman reactions could be reduced to negative. Most of our patients were insane and the cases were diagnosed as paresis.

"We included in our series twelve early paretics, mostly ex-service men. They presented a picture of maniac excitement. Of the total of fifty-four cases studied, twenty-eight have been discharged and are holding positions.

"Ing the forty-two advanced paretics, twenty-one have been discharged. In the twelve earlier cases of the acute and extremely agitated type, our results have been most pronounced. Seven patients have fully recovered their normal mentality. The remaining five are mentally in a condition to earn their living."

The physicians describe a "brainstorm" paretic who was excitable became paralyzed on one side and had delusions of great wealth. He soon very expansive and exalted and appeared as if he would have died in two months. After four months of tryparsamid treatment he returned to normal health.

WOMEN LEGISLATORS HAVE MADE GOOD, HOUSE LEADER SAYS

RECORDS HAVE BLAZED WAY FOR OTHERS OF SEX

By REP. R. D. SAWYER.

Those persons, male or female, who look forward to women taking an active part in public affairs, may well rejoice that the two women who broke the ice and entered the Massachusetts Legislature were Susan W. FitzGerald and M. Morton Sawyer.

And the sisters of their respective districts need make no apology for sending to us women representatives.

Both women were rarely fitted to make the initial experiment of women representative s in the Massachusetts House.

Back of Mrs. FitzGerald's entrance to the House was a long record of interest and activity in city civic affairs and Miss Donaldson's long career as a public school teacher in the city of Brockton had irresistibly brought her into close touch with many phases of public life.

INFLUENCE BENEFICIAL.

The influence of women legislators has been highly beneficial. They have had a tendency to be more independent than the men. By happy coincidence we have had in our two women Representatives, one Democrat and one Republican, and while they have pretty consistently voted with their parties, yet they have broken away more often than their men colleagues—surely not a bad thing.

They have not attempted to scold or lecture us men, and on the whole, I think even those who looked upon woman's entrance into legislative life with apprehension, will admit they were happily disappointed.

I am inclined to think that any man with a good case will get a fairer hearing, or at least a more patient one, from our two women representatives than he will from more of the men. This may be because they were women, for it may be because they were new in the game. I am inclined to believe it is because of the former reason, and I do not expect to see them fall into the habit of running in the line of least resistance quite so much as do the men.

The two women in the Legislature of 1922 have blazed the way for their sex, and in 1924 no woman need or must defend herself for entering into a fight for a legislative seat in the House of 1925.

Youngstown, O., May 28.—The world's endurance dancing record was claimed by Miss Frances Mercure and Harry Warner of this city, who left the floor after dancing for 182 hours and eight minutes. They rested three minutes every eight hours.

The previous record is said to be 168 hours, held in Texas.

HEARST SAYS FORD CAN BE ELECTED

New Orleans, May 28.—The New Orleans Daily States prints the following as an interview with William Randolph Hearst, given before he left here for Galveston:

"If the Presidency of the United States was to be settled by popular vote today, Henry Ford would be President," said William Randolph Hearst, great publisher, who spent some time in New Orleans, en route to California, and who was the guest of Colonel Robert Ewing, publisher of the New Orleans States, during his brief stay.

"But," continued Mr. Hearst, "the only way that Henry Ford can ever run for the presidency will be to run as an independent candidate. The political machinery of both national parties, Democratic and Republican alike is in the hands of old-line reactionaries. They may not be able to nominate the man they want. But they can prevent the nomination of the man they don't want—and that man is Henry Ford.

SEES G. O. P. DOWNFALL.

"I believe the Republican party will go down to one of the most decisive defeats in its history in the coming Presidential election. And the so-called foreign policy of the Republican party will be responsible for its defeat.

"I am unalterably opposed to the entry of the United States into the League of Nations or the World Court, which is nothing but a stepping stone to the League of Nations. And I believe the great majority of Americans are with me in this.

"When a fly gets one foot tangled up on the sticky flypaper that fly is pretty likely to end by having all its feet tangled up. And if America gets one foot in the World Court, America will end by having all its feet tangled up in the League of Nations.

PROBLEMS AT HOME.

"America has problems enough to settle at home without going out of her way to try to settle the problems of the world. There need be no Rigid policy of 'splendid isolation' carried out to any absurd degree, which is what the partisans of the World Court and the League of Nations picture as the only alternative to non-membership in those institutions.

"But there are American problems affecting Americans that are crying for solutions, and that will demand the best constructive brains of America to work out.

"American business has discarded the methods of the nineteenth century in favor of the methods of the twentieth century. It's about time that American politics, too, discarded the nineteenth century methods."

"Are you going straight through to California?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"No," said he. "I'm stopping over in Fort Worth, to look over the Fort Worth Record, a property I've recently invested in, and that D. D. Moore, formerly of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, is associated with me in operating."

"Do you plan any further extensions of your newspapers in the South?"

Mr. Hearst smiled.

"I never plan any extensions," he said. "But papers seem just naturally to keep coming to me to be taken over. I'm not as young as I was once, and the older we get the less we are likely to set out to conquer the world. "But papers keep on coming into my organization and the Forth Worth Record happens to be the latest one. That's all."

IS PAID HIGH TRIBUTE.

The State's article adds:

"Mr. Hearst, tall, broad-shouldered, smooth shaven, with graying hair, save for a few lines in his face shows few of the marks of his responsibilities as one of the world's greatest publishers. His voice is low and even. His gray eyes twinkle with whimsical humor as he talks.

"He stands today as the greatest publisher in America, with some nineteen great metropolitan papers in his organization, as well as a group of the leading magazines in the nation."

The States then pays a remarkable tribute to Mr. Hearst and recounts his many achievements as a public man.

"His once reforms are now regarded as national and international standards," the States says.

WOMEN WITH SWORDS FIGHT LOVE DUEL

Wheelock, sixty, whose hand was badly injured in the encounter with the young and pretty antagonist, Miss Violet Young Grant, twenty-two, formerly of Waverly, had not recovered sufficiently to leave the general hospital, she did not reside as to the "mansion on the hill" at Chestry.

WIFE LEAVES MANSION.

Instead she sent this message, which indicates that she does not intend to return to her home, where for more than twenty years of her married life with the naturalist was spent:

"Wire all of my clothing to this messenger. (Signed)

RUTH."

The messenger was met at the entrance of the mansion by Mrs. Grant, who consulted the physician while the messenger went away with the clothing.

Later neighbors said an express package—undoubtedly containing the clothes—was sent to her at Leicester.

Mrs. Wheelock is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Schlenker. Mrs. Grant is at the mansion, which indicates who won the duel.

CALLED "OTHER WOMAN"

Here is Mrs. Wheelock's story of the duel.

Mrs. Wheelock became my husband thirty-one years ago. No couple lived more happily than did we until three years ago when he first met Mabel Grant. She was interested in literary work, which is the occupation of the doctor much of the time.

"Mrs. Grant came to live at our home and last Fall trouble developed. As a result I spent much of my time with an old friend in Leicester."

Mrs. Wheelock said she believed she had reasons for jealousy. She said that she was ignored in her own home. On the day of the duel she went walking with her husband. "We went through the woods and gathered many beautiful flowers," she said. "I had a wonderful afternoon with the doctor, just as we used to have in the old days.

"We returned home in the afternoon and I prepared dinner. My husband and I sat for a long time in front of the fire. Then Mabel came back from town.

"She was tired and cross and we had words. I thought she was going to attack me and I decided to lock myself in my own room.

"Then I saw the Chinese sword hanging on the wall. I reached up and took it down. As I did Mabel sprang at me. She seized the sword, which has a double edge.

"In the struggle the scabbard came off and she got the sword away from me. Both of us were cut during the fight."

Astounded by the developments, Dr. Wheelock stepped between the women and begged them to stop. Then both women went to the infirmary for treatment.

LASELL GIRLS DISMISSED

ded, the girls are not expected to return, authorities at the fashionable finishing school on Woodland road said.

The father of the Hartford student arrived to take his daughter home, and Miss Phillips was ordered to pack her things and return to her parents.

The two girls, school officials state, stayed away from classes last Friday and met two young men in Boston.

Both were sailors in uniform, from one of the units of the battleship fleet now tied up at the Navy Yard. One of them was an acquaintance of Miss Phillips.

On returning from Boston a canoe trip was proposed and the four obtained a canoe at Norumbega Park.

Employes at the seminary later told the faculty they had seen sailors in uniform waiting out side the dormitory several days ago.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, May 26th, on shipments sold out, ranged from 8.54 cents to 17.88 cents per pound and averaged 16.45 cents per pound."—Advt.

Read How Linit, The New Scientific Starch Discovery, Gives The Natural Linen Finish That Every Woman Likes To Get in Her Ironing

What Every Woman Wants To Know

FOR the first time, it is possible for you to iron in the ideal way—with no "lumping" or sticking of your starch, and with perfect assurance of always getting the rich, natural linen finish with all your fabrics.

Linit, the new scientific starch discovery, is made by an improved process that keeps the starch fluid after it cools. It remains a thin paste, so you are never troubled with clotting, smearing or "blistering." Linit penetrates every thread of fabric, helps prevent wear, and lengthens the life of your fabric. It reinforces the strength of the material.

Linit gives cotton the linen finish your fabrics had when they first came from the store—and makes them shed dust and stay clean longer.

Starch every kind of fabric with Linit—whether lawn, cotton, linen, gingham, lace or curtains—just as you would with other starches.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Linit, and begin the modern way of starching your fabrics.

TORIES ELECT BALDWIN LEADER

London, May 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was chosen leader of the Conservatives at a party meeting today.

Lord Curzon, who presided, moved the election of Mr. Baldwin as leader in succession to Mr. Bonar Law. The foreign secretary felicitated both the party and the prime minister on the choice.

Sir Frederick Bambury seconded the nomination, and Mr. Baldwin's election followed amidst great enthusiasm.

The services rendered by Bonar Law were recognized by a special vote of thanks.

Premier Baldwin today met Parliament for the first time as head of the Ministry.

Austen Chamberlain's letter to his constituents, in which he says Mr. Baldwin did not ask his help in forming the Ministry, has caused a sensation in the newspapers. It is generally believed the net result has deepened the cleavage within the party, which it was hoped the change of Premiership would remove.

According to the Morning Post Mr. Chamberlain's letter was drawn up at a meeting attended by the leading Coalition Conservatives, Mr. Chamberlain and Winston Churchill.

Invents Device to Send Autograph Telegrams

Paris, May 28.—French ingenuity has furnished patrons of the telegraph a new device. It is a system of sending autograph telegrams.

The sender of a message writes the telegram on a revolving cylinder, and through a series of mechanical principles it is received by the addressee in the original writing of the sender.

The transmitting machine, the invention of M. Belin, is being installed in all the French telegraph and post-offices.

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS OPENS WITH PARADE

Boston's circus season was officially ushered in today with the Sells-Floto street parade, the preliminary of a week's engagement at the old Huntington avenue ball grounds, with entertainments and novelties to delight the Hub's kiddies as well as grown-ups.

The circus arrived here Sunday afternoon over the New Haven road, and before dusk the big top and the smaller tops, the side shows and the menageries were in readiness for the opening of the "greatest show on earth."

The parade began at 9:30 a. m. and proceeded over the regular route. Thousands of persons lined the sidewalks along the entire route of the parade and viewed the wild beasts in their dens and cages.

A lyrical spectacle, "A Night in Persia," opens the performances this afternoon with a cast of 1,200 people and animals. The circus consists of a six-pole top, three rings, two stages, an aerial maze and a hippodrome track. Scores of new attractions are offered this year.

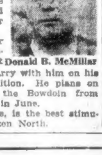
A baby chimpanzee, the favorite of the circus menagery nursery, will be given a name by Boston's children, who attend the circus. Eleven thousand persons are connected with the show this year, including many favorite old performers and new stars. The animal attractions are equally new and varied.

SALADA TEA SUPPLY PRESENTED EXPLORER

Would you give a Blue fox skin for a cup of tea?

An Eskimo will, at least so says Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer.

MacMillan informed officials of the Salada Tea Company that a pound of tea would procure enough of the highly prized blue fox pelts for a fur coat.



Donald B. MacMillan

The explorer was given a supply of the best Salada tea to carry with him on his two year expedition. He plans on sailing aboard the Bowdoin from Wiscasset, Me., in June.

Tea, he claims, is the best stimulant in the frozen North.

CALL FOR VOTE ON TELEPHONE STRIKE HERE

A step toward a general strike among New England telephone operators was taken by the New England Council of Telephone Operators' locals at a meeting in the Tremont Building, when that body voted to reject the reply of the officials of the company to their demands for an increase in wages and a seven-hour day.

In their communication to the telephone operators, refusing to grant their demands, the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. expressed their belief that wages and working conditions among its employes compared favorably at present with those in other industries, and that an increase in wages would have to be borne by subscribers.

Julia O'Connor

In rejecting the company's reply, the council, representing forty-five locals of 12,000 operators in five States, also voted to secure the sentiment of the various locals on the matter of a strike vote. The council ordered that meetings of the various locals be held this week on the following three questions:

1—Shall the act of the council in rejecting the company's communication be sustained?

2—Shall a strike vote be polled for the enforcement of our wage demands, the seven-hour day, and the reclassification of schedules?

Miss E. M. Bean

Miss M. H. Brady

3—If a majority of the locals favor a strike vote, shall the council be authorized to set a date and conduct such a strike poll?

The decision of the locals on these questions must be reported to the council before June 4.

Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the Boston local, attacked the communication of the company, declaring that the operators are not seeking increases in wages at the expense of the public, and charging the company with "endeavoring to influence adversely the public attitude toward wage increases."

Other delegates who attended the council meeting and who denounced the reply of the company to their demands are: E. M. Bean of Nashua, Margaret B. Hickey of Brockton, Gladys Bigelow of St. Johnsbury, Vt.; M. H. Brady of Providence, M. J. Winn of Springfield and A. M. Foley of Worcester.

The other three Downing children, Gladys, Charles and Henry, witnessed the tragedy.

Little Allen suffered a broken arm when he was struck with the hammer wielded by his father when he went to the aid of his mother. Mrs. Downing was slashed about the head and throat by her husband.

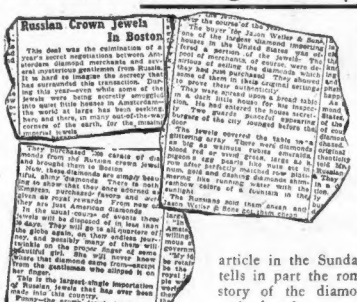
Jason Weiler & Sons' Diamond Buyer Buys in Europe many of the Russian Crown Jewels sold by the Soviet Government—at a Big Sacrifice!



Russian Crown Jewels In Boston
This deal was the culmination of a year's secret negotiations between Amsterdam diamond merchants and several mysterious gentlemen from Russia. It is hard to imagine the secrecy that surrounded this transaction. During this year—even while some of the gems were being secretly smuggled into the United States in Amsterdam—the world at large has been seeking here, there, in every out-of-the-way corner of the earth, for the missing crown jewels.
Recently purchased 200 carats of diamonds from the Russian crown jewel hoard and brought them to Boston.
Now these diamonds are simply beautiful, shiny diamonds. There is nothing to show that they were ever worn as royal ornaments. Purchasers favored with a private showing of the gems declare that they are very unusual diamonds.
It is the usual course of events for these jewels will be disposed of in less than 30 days. They will go in all corners of the globe again, on their endless journeys, and possibly many of them will twinkle on the proud finger of several beautiful girls. She will never know where the diamond came from—except her fingerman who slipped it on.
This is the largest single importation of Russian jewels that has ever been made into this country—the crown jewels of Russia on Washington, Jefferson's list.

THIS announcement is the most unique in the history of American diamond importing. So far as is known Jason Weiler & Sons were the only American House to share in one of the most extraordinary purchases that has ever been recorded. We publish a few clippings from a half page news article in the Sunday Boston Post, which tells in part the romantic and remarkable story of the diamonds which have just arrived and are now on sale in our salesrooms.

Never before and probably never again will another such diamond buying opportunity be presented. Only the urgent need of the Soviet Government of Russia for funds caused such a sacrifice of the rare gems of not only superb quality, but to which history and romance lend additional charm. Fortunate indeed were Jason Weiler & Sons' Foreign Agencies to be on the ground to take advantage of such a sacrifice.

If you have ever wanted a diamond and have been waiting an opportunity wherein you could save money, that opportunity has at last arrived.

PARIS NOW YIELDS TO AMERICAN COOKS AND TAILORS

MEN WEAR SOMBRERO TYPE HAT

Even "Midnight Frolics" Is Staged in English Tongue

Paris, May 28.—With 40,000 Americans congregated in France, mostly in Paris, the "A la Americain" craze has hit Paris with redoubled fervor. Even the sober minded section of the French populace has yielded to the popular liking of things American.

Two famous restaurants, including "Lucas," for many years the headquarters for connoisseurs in eating and drinking, have gone so far as to hire American cooks, overriding all Parisian gastronomical tradition.

Elsie Janis, Frenchmen now insist on American tailoring. American broad-brimmed hats are strictly modish, and several boulevard haberdashers are even displaying American short length underwear, hitherto one of the principal stock jokes of Paris comics.

Contributing to this capturing of the old by the new is a group of missionaries, mostly theatrical, who have literally taken possession of all the cherished landmarks in the fashionable night district. The Dolly Sisters have opened the "Ambassadeurs," and were given a great ovation.

Harry Pilcer runs the Champs Elysees supper dance; Florence Walton is scheduled to open the Marigny Theatre Thursday, while her former husband, Maurice, is still triumphing with Lenora Hughes.

Isabel Boardman Among Bridesmaids for Society Smart Wedding

Miss Isabella Grandin, one of the younger set's cleverest equestriennes, who has entered "Taps" in the Chestnut Hill Horse Show.

By BETTY ALDEN

AMONG the bridesmaids who will attend Miss Dorothea Amory Codman is Miss Isabel Boardman, daughter of the Edwin A. Boardmans of Beacon street and the North Shore.

Miss Boardman and her sub-deb sister, Elvira, are no end keen about sailing, and they're looking forward to this Summer particularly, for they've already been signed up on the crew of the Mosca, which their parter pilots around the waters of Marblehead.

The other Boston girls whom Miss Codman has selected for her attending group are the Misses Lena Turnbull and Rosamond Johnson. Miss Ella Zimmerman comes on from Philadelphia to serve as maid of honor, while the two tiny daughters of Mrs. Gerald Livingston of New York will be flower girls. Mrs. Livingston is a sister of the prospective groom, William McNeill Rodewald. The latter is the son of W. McNeill Rodewald of Tuxedo Park, a Harvard '20 man, and now at the Law School.

The wedding of the young people will take place on June 23 at the Church of the Advent. The bride-to-be is a member of the 1919-20 Sewing Circle and a member of the Vincent Club.

MRS. JOHN LIVINGSTON GRANDIN'S sport-loving granddaughter, Miss Isabella Grandin, is of the younger folk who've entered their mounts in the Chestnut Hill Horse Show taking place Memorial Day on the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club.

Miss Grandin, who will ride her saddle mount, "Taps," has already proved herself a daring and clever equestrienne. It won't be in the least surprising to see her ride from the ring on Wednesday mounted on a blue-ribboned "Taps." She's probably one of the best riders of the younger set. If I remember correctly, at last year's show she took some of the high jumps with breath-taking ease.

BAILEY'S BEACH, which is really the pet particular "hangout" for Newport's fashionables, is to be opened for the season on June 10.

There is probably more energy and effort consumed in keeping the mere hoi-polloi off the sacred precincts of Bailey's Beach than there is keeping any other strip of coastline free from the same contaminating influence. To cavort about the water's of Bailey's Beach—and one is truly in the social swim.

Though of late years there have been few Bostonians in the Newport Summer colony, a goodly slice of the smart set make a point of paying at least one visit each season to Little Rhodey's famous watering place. Especially in the mid-Summer when the big tennis matches are played at the Casino, or later on when the Newport Horse Show is staged there.

One of Our Early Competitors

When our business was beginning its life modestly in a little store on Cornhill in 1800, Paul Revere was plying his craft not far away. For after the close of the Revolutionary War he resumed his trade as silversmith and continued until his death in 1818.

It is with great pleasure that we offer to our customers a sugar bowl fashioned by him, our most famous competitor.

This sugar bowl is an excellent example of Revere's work. The engraving of the monogram and palms is typical of him. The shape is graceful and the fine beading is beautifully executed.

Early American silver is a very interesting study, reflecting as it does the habits and tastes of our young country. You will find that we have quite a collection on our third floor. You are cordially invited to inspect it any day at your convenience.

Here too you will find old furniture, glass, pewter, and tapestries brought together from all over this country, England, and the Continent.

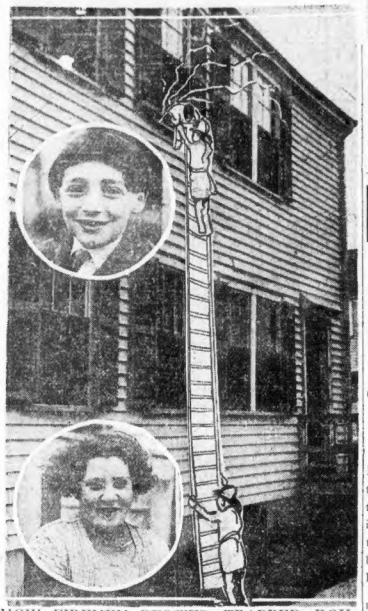
BOY IN TUB IS RESCUED BY FIREMEN



HOW FIREMEN RESCUED TRAPPED BOY

When Edward Jacobson of No. 60 Lawn street, Quincy, was entrapped in the bathroom of his home by a snap lock his mother called out the crew of Engine 3. Firemen raised a ladder, entered a window and freed the boy. Photo-diagram shows how rescue was made. Insets are the boy and his mother.

Six-year-old Edward Jacobson was playing in the bathroom of his home at No. 60 Lawn street, Quincy. The snap lock on the door caught his eye. He touched it. The door slammed shut. The boy could not get it open. He began crying.

His mother called instructions from the hall, but the child could not turn the lock back. She became greatly excited.

As a last resort she called fire headquarters and Engine 3 responded, expecting to find a fire.

A fireman raised a ladder against the window, crawled in, unlocked the door and carried Edward to his mother.

This is the second time Engine 3 has been summoned to get the child out of the bathroom.

RUM RUNNERS LAND BIG CARGO UNDER NOSES OF SLEUTHS

Norfolk, Va., May 28.—(I. N. S.)—The rum fleet which for a week has been standing outside the Capes under the watchful eye of the government agents has succeeded in landing a considerable part of its cargo despite the vigilance of dry sleuths. The fleet was stopped from a "major operation" here, but insiders declared small craft, operating from shore under cover of darkness, had landed thousands of cases of liquor.

Rex D. Sheldon, connected with La Montagne Brothers in New York, was still in jail today in default of $10,000 bail. W. L. Burwell and his wife, arrested with Sheldon, have gone to New York, presumably to raise funds to bail out Sheldon.

VETS DESTROY STATUE, COUNTY WOULDN'T REPAIR

York, Pa., May 28.—Former service men early today demolished the statue "Winged Victory," which was placed in front of the Courthouse during the Victory Loan drive in 1919. The statue, made of plaster, had fallen into a state of disrepair and the county commissioners refused to mend it.

War veterans announced several days ago that they would refuse to march past the statue on Memorial Day if it was not repaired. No attention, apparently, was given this threat, and today a group of veterans used ropes and chains and pulled the statue off its base and it broke into pieces.

BRADLEE ELUDES SERVICE

Counsel Unable to Locate Him to Oust Him as Slater Trustee

New citation for service upon Frederick J. Bradlee, one of the two trustees of the $7,000 fortune of Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, in her suit to oust him from the trusteeship was taken out today by her counsel, Major Thomas L. Walsh.

This was on account of the prolonged absence of Mr. Bradlee from the city and the inability of the later counsel to serve the first papers issued in the case in spite of diligent inquiry for him.

The Boston American located Mr. Bradlee today at the Boylston street branch of the Old Colony Trust Company, where he was at work again after an absence of two weeks. Officials of the trust company said that Mr. Bradlee was "in an important conference."

A hearing on Mrs. Slater's petition for dissolution of the trusteeship is scheduled for next Monday in Worcester Probate Court. But the delay in service and formal notice of the suit upon Mr. Bradlee may cause postponement of the hearing.

Mrs. Slater, who was in telephone communication from New York today with Major Walsh's office, is ready to go to Worcester Probate Court at a day's notice.

Mr. Bradlee, not having received service so far, has not yet committed himself to the jurisdiction of the court in regard to this action.

Miss Aimee A. Jones, as she is known in the business world, or Mrs. James A. Sweeney as she is in private life, who is the other trustee with Mr. Bradlee, has proffered her resignation from the trusteeship to Major Walsh, saying she was ready to do whatever Mrs. Slater desired.

The ouster petition is directed against both trustees but the proffer of resignation by Aimee A. Jones-Sweeney leaves Bradlee as the only apparent opposition to Mrs. Slater's action.

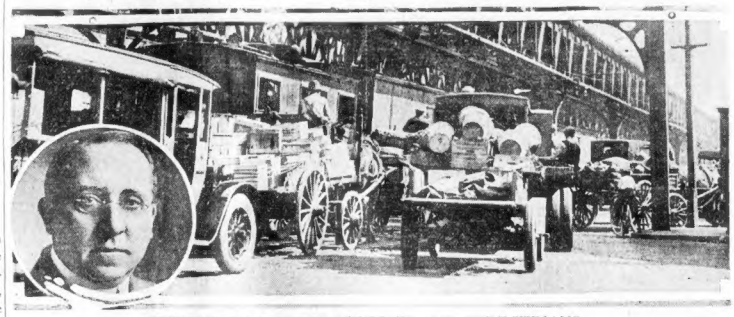
ATLANTIC AVE. TRAFFIC JAM



FREIGHT CARS BLOCK VEHICLES AND PEDESTRIANS

John H. L. Noyes (inset), chairman of the Boston street commissioners, plans to eliminate the long standing freight car nuisance in new traffic rules.

PROPOSES TO END 'PARKING' OF FREIGHT

Remedy of the long standing freight car nuisance along Atlantic avenue, with its blocking of vehicular and foot traffic at street intersections, finally seems to be in sight. The cars are those of the Union Freight Railroad.

Chairman John H. L. Noyes of the Boston Street Commissioners, who have made a survey, says that the railroad has parked freight cars there for several days. He favors elimination of all standing freight on the avenue.

He will offer a plan at the next meeting of the special committee on the problem whereby parking space may easily be had by the road other than on Atlantic avenue.

"I am of opinion," he says, "that the Commercial street site is the best place for the storage of the company's freight cars. The streets will then be kept clean of all standing cars. Only a small number of moving ones will be in sight. The maximum number of standing cars that can be moved by the railroad during the night is thirty-five. I intend to ask that this number be increased to forty. During the day they may move fifteen cars. I shall ask that this be limited to eight."

HOTEL BLOCK IN EAST JAFFREY BURNS

East Jaffrey, N. H., May 28.—Fire today destroyed the Hotel Block in this town, at an estimated loss of $30,000. The fire started in the kitchen of a restaurant which occupied the lower floor, officials thought. August Duval, his wife and three-year-old child were rescued by firemen.

ARREST SEVEN IN HOLDUP AT NANTASKET

Seven South Boston youths are alleged to have held up an automobile party at Nantasket and robbed the occupants of the car, two men and three women, of $200 in cash and jewelry valued at $1,000.

All of the alleged robbers were rounded up by the Hull police.

The names of the victims of the holdup were withheld by the police. The robbery occurred in the Green Hill district as the party was leaving a hotel.

SEVEN ARRESTED.

All of the youths charged with the robbery were picked up soon after it was reported to the police. Three of the young men, the police say, were captured as they attempted to flee in their automobile. Two others were rounded up near the scene of the robbery.

The remaining two were captured by a ruse of the police. The police left the automobile in which they had captured three of the alleged robbers near the police station, apparently unguarded.

RUSH SUCCEEDS.

As they had suspected, the two youths, who were at large at the time their companions were being booked, made an attempt to get away with the machine. All of the arrests were made by Sergeant Armour and Patrolman Lynch.

The arrested men gave their names as James A. Moynahan of No. 6 Locust street, James Foley of No. 723 Dorchester avenue, Vincent Courtney of No. 47 East Fifth street, Thomas J. Gordon of No. 282 Silver street, Joseph W. Kain of No. 279 Eighth street, John J. McGuire of No. 499 Broadway, John Cain of No. 327 Broadway.

Policeman Mistaken for Boy by Woman Bootlegger

Patrolman Arthur M. Tiernan, of the East Dedham street station, was mistaken for a school boy when he attempted to purchase liquor from an alleged woman "hooch" pedlar on Rutland street, South End.

Tiernan and Patrolman E. L. Kelley, both in civilian clothes, went to the home of Mrs. Bertha Flaharty, No. 29 Rutland street.

"Give us a quart," said Tiernan.

"Are you of age?" inquired the woman.

"No, but my friend is," was the reply.

START WORK ON RADIAL HIGHWAY NEXT WEEK

Work on the widening of Cambridge and Court streets, Boston's new radial highway, from east to west, will start next week, Chairman John H. L. Noyes of the street commission announced today.

One hundred and thirty pieces of land will be affected. The street will be 100 feet wide, one of the largest thoroughfares in the city. The cost will be $3,500,000.

The expense is five times larger than that for the Stuart street project. When completed it will be one of the greatest improvements of the kind in the city's history.

The work will be started and finished in the Curley administration. Present plans call for completion of the job within two years.

Chairman Noyes says the surveying work will take about nine months. The betterment damages will then be determined.

Land will be taken from both sides of the streets. Property owned by the old "Higgins Oyster House," and the old Revere House will be taken.

The widening will start from the northeast corner of Brattle street, near Court street and run to the Cambridge street bridge. It will be 100 feet until it nears the bridge, then branch out to 150 feet.

It will ease the traffic jams that now occur on Harvard Bridge and in the Massachusetts avenue section.

ABDUCTION CASE TO END IN HONEYMOON

Through intercession of relatives the alleged abduction of sixteen year-old Anna Benevento of Swampscott, by Nicolas Chegas of No. 41 English street, Peabody, is to be changed into a honeymoon. When Chegas appeared in Lynn court today, Chief William O. Quinn of the Swampscott police asked to have the case continued. The pair are going to be married, he said. Anna disappeared with Chegas two weeks ago. A couple of day later she was found in a Salem hotel. Chegas later gave himself up.

WILL FIGHT CHARGES OF LYNN MAN

17-Year-Old Youth Retains Counsel to Represent Him at Merrill Divorce Hearing

Seventeen-year-old James E. Henwood of Salem, and Sagamore, who is accused as a boy sheik by Edward L. Merrill, Lynn candy manufacturer, in Merrill's suit for divorce, countered today with claims that the charge is "a frame-up."

Henwood has retained counsel to represent his interests at the coming trial of the Merrill case at Essex Probate court in Newburyport.

He denies Merrill's charges.

Mrs. Grace F. Merrill, the accused wife, filed at Newburyport today, through her counsel, Attorney Michael L. Sullivan of Salem, a notice of contest and a general denial of her husband's accusations against herself and Henwood.

SAYS WIFE IS INNOCENT.

Attorney Sullivan said he is prepared to offer proof that Mrs. Merrill is innocent.

In a statement today young Henwood said:

"This charge is a frame-up on Merrill's part in an attempt to get rid of his wife and of me. I have engaged a lawyer to protect my interests.

"I was not taken from an institution by Merrill, as reported, or by anyone else. I left there on my own good merits.

"Through a friend of my mother, who died June 15, 1921, I obtained work at the eMerrill farm at $3 a week. It was more than a boy of my age could ordinarily endure. If I had not been used to hard work I could not have stood it.

WILL TELL EVERYTHING.

"Merrill always told me to go to the shows with his wife because he did not wish her to go alone. She was ill.

"I continued there until I began to suspect that it was a frameup.

"I feared Mr. Merrill and always did as he commanded. When the trial comes I will tell everything.

"I was threatened with bodily harm when I told him I was going to leave. I called him on the telephone at his place of business in Lynn and told him I was leaving. He offered me more money if I would remain on the farm.

"I could not stand seeing Mrs. Merrill ill-treated, so I left and returned to Sagamore.

"The statement that Mrs. Merrill and I were found in a room together, March 8, is a lie. Why, on March 15 Mr. Merrill gave a birthday party to a number of friends at the Merrill home in honor of Mrs. Merrill's birthday."

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

SOME scientists claim that it's easier to identify criminals by impressions of the toes than it is by finger prints. Maybe this is true, but very few burglars open windows with their feet.

A ROBBER may kick a door down, but he isn't going to take his shoes off while he does it.

HE doesn't care anything about your door, but he's got lots of respect for his toes.

A SAFE BLOWER can find the combination of any vault with his fingers, but he'd have a hard job doing it with his feet.

THE chances are his corns would get in the way.

AFTER he opens a safe he goes to a manicurist and gets his fingers fixed up, but he doesn't want to keep running to a chiropodist.

FOOTPRINTS may be damaging evidence, but not many hold-up men walk around town barefooted.

THE wife of the average thug wouldn't let him walk over cobble stones and car tracks in his socks.

FOR a while the police started identifying crooks by their footprints. One guy was hauled to jail so often on suspicion, that every time he met a policeman he started taking his shoes and stockings off.

PRETTY soon he got wise and saved himself a lot of trouble by going around in his bare feet.

A POLICEMAN would see him without any shoes or stockings on and stop and question him, but the crook would tell the cop that he was just on his way to the ocean to go in wading.

OF course, the crook was just lying, the chances are if he really wanted to go to an ocean he wouldn't know the address of one.

THE police department could take impressions of the toes the same way they do finger prints, but no chief wants a lot of crooks walking around on top of his desk.

CAN you imagine how awkward it would be to have some burglar standing on your nice mahogany table, dipping his feet in your ink well?

AND some crooks have such big feet that there wouldn't be enough room in the jail to fill the footprints.

IF they put this system into force, every burglar in town would be going around the city on crutches.

AND the hold-up men would go to and from work on roller skates.

FOOTPRINTS may be wonderful means of identification, but they don't help the laundries any in returning the right socks to us.

THE PLUGGER, THE STEADY WORKER, HAS THE LAST LAUGH

It is the one who laughs last who laughs longest.

Remember this when you are tempted to "hee-haw" at some poor soul who is making what seems to you a foolish effort along some line.

It is the plugger, the steady worker, who comes out ahead at the end.

There are a lot of "Good-beginners" who tear up the turf and throw everything aside in an apparent effort to start something.

But that is about all they do—"start something."

You never can tell what great things may come from the steady workers' efforts; so do not laugh too soon when you feel critical and especially sure of yourself in any matter.

The constant drip, drip of water wears away rocks if continued long enough, and the man who can set a pace and keep at it is bound to be heard from.

To sit down in the middle of things or to cut a wide slash all around does not get very far in the long run.

If you think enough you will not begin too loud but keep everlastingly at it till you succeed and then can "laugh last," for you have won out.

JUST IN FUN

HUSBAND OF MRS. HAYES SILENT ON HER FINANCIAL TROUBLES

REFUSES TO DISCUSS REPORT OF FAMILY DISCORD

BY BERT FORD.

Damariscotta, Me., May 28.—Orville H. Hayes, husband of Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes, will not be a voluntary witness at the trial of his wife in New York on the charge of forging the signature of Charles M. Schwab on a $25,000 note. He says he does not know anything about the muddle and that he wishes to keep out of it.

"Would you go if subpoenaed?" I was asked. "In that event, I don't have to, but I don't now anything about the case and don't expect to," said he. "I couldn't add to it one way or another."

Q.—Have Hayes here been consulted by New York and Boston lawyers in the fact that you did not go to your wife on communicate with her when she was arrested. This is the impression of others that you and Mrs. Hayes are estranged, and, it is reported to the village that you refused to see her divorce. A.—One is apt to hear all sorts of wild rumors in a rural community.

Q.—Are you and Mrs. Hayes still on good terms? A.—Mrs. Hayes can answer that. Whatever she says can be depended on. She is a truthful woman.

Q.—Do you fear the outcome for her? A.—I would sooner not answer that question.

KNEW SHE HAD BACKING.

Q.—Do you think Mr. Schwab indorsed any or all of these disputed notes? A.—I don't know a thing about it.

Q.—Have you knowledge that he personally carried Mrs. Hayes in the Chatham Hotel venture? A.—I simply know that she was backed by some pretty big New Yorkers.

Q.—Did you ever hear the name of Schwab mentioned? A.—There are a lot of things I could tell you, but I house not mention them at this time.

Q.—Do you think Mrs. Hayes had Mr. Schwab's authority to negotiate those notes? A.—I don't know a thing about it.

Q.—Were you aware when you married Mrs. Hayes of her postal or business relations with Mr. Schwab for some years previous? A.—I don't care to discuss that.

Q.—When did you marry Mrs. Hayes? A.—About twelve years ago in New York.

Q.—Were you then aware that she had been married and divorced? A.—I was.

Q.—Do you know now she first met Mr. Schwab? A.—I do not.

Q.—Did Mr. Schwab first interest Mrs. Hayes in hotel promotion? A.—I don't know anything about it.

LIVED OWN LIVES.

Q.—Do you know how she happened to adopt that line of business? A.—No. She was always a business woman.

Q.—Did you ever try to persuade her to follow a domestic life? A.—No. I attended to my affairs and she did to hers.

Mr. Hayes was interviewed on his brother's farm, four miles from town on Shanpine Hill. His own country estate, known as "Pastime Farms," in Bremen, six miles from here is closed. He is living with his brother Clinton, who has a housekeeper.

Both farms are the trim type kept by gentlemen farmers. That is what the Hayes brothers are. Townspeople wonder why two such young men are content to live on farms which are more ornamental than productive.

Orville, husband of Mrs. Hayes, is forty-two and looks into younger. His brother Clinton is about twenty-six. He served overseas. Both are unmistakably aristocrats. They are reported to have inherited incomes from their father and uncle.

Some of the folks in Damariscotta think Mrs. Hayes' husband owns both farms and that he wishes to keep his hands off his wife's financial troubles in order to safeguard his own property. The livestock on bloomers, a shirt, a comb and the knife. The bottle the boys told the police, was resting on the sandy bottom.

Arlington police are checking up on missing girls in all surrounding cities and towns. They said that if they are given any facts to warrant the pond will be dragged and the woods on the Arlington-Belmont line will be searched.

Woman, 104, All Through With Marriage

Eau Claire, Wis., May 28.—Mrs. Nancy Ketchum O'Brien of Osseo, who celebrated her 104th birthday anniversary on May 23, says she has decided never to marry again. "One husband is enough for any woman," she explained. Her husband has been dead many years.

GIRL'S 'SUICIDE' NOTE FOUND AT SPY POND

A bundle of girl's clothing, a silver butter knife and a note in a bottle reading: "I have hidden baby in the woods and am going to drown myself," were reported found on the Lake street shore of Spy Pond, Arlington, by two boys of that town.

Arlington police said that the clothing had been turned over to them and they were investigating the affair as a "possible" case of suicide, although suspicious of a hoax.

The boys told the police that they put the note back into the bottle, which they left on the shore. No traces of the bottle could be found, however, by the police.

The boys were John McCarthy, No. 10 Grove street place, and Walter Heffernan, No. 14 Wyman terrace, Arlington. They made their find on Sandy Beach.

There were no marks of identification on the clothing. The bundle contained a girl's waist of pink

2 WOMEN TAKE POISON BY MISTAKE

A girl woman and a man are at the City Hospital as a result, it is alleged, of mistaking poison for medicine.

Florence Mitsofanes, nineteen years old, of No. 1 Seneca street, South End, returned from a drug store with two bottles of medicine, one for external and the other for internal use. An hour later she drank by mistake a dose of the external liniment, and fell unconscious. Her landlady, Mrs. Anna Elliot, notified the police and she was removed to the City Hospital.

Entering his home Bartholomew A. Grogan of No. 49 Hampden street, Roxbury, discovered the unconscious form of his wife, Mrs. Margaret Grogan, seventy-nine years old, stretched on the floor of the kitchen. By her side was a small bottle of iodine and the medicine chest was open. She was taken to the hospital in an automobile. The husband believes that she mistook the iodine for medicine and drank it. She will recover.

John Reardon, thirty years old, of No. 45 Compton street, South End, drank the contents of a bottle of turpentine, mistaking it for soda water. He was taken to the hospital by the police.

Telegraph Briefs

Elizabeth, N. J.—An old ordinance prohibiting pedlars from making noise on the streets was invoked to stop the use of phonograph horns in front of the stores of radio dealers. The police say the horns violate the ordinance and constitute a nuisance.

New York (By U. P.).—Robert P. Brindell, former head of the Building Trades Unions in New York, and serving five to ten years for extortion, has been meeting his friends and relatives in a building outside Sing Sing walls. Warden Lawes surprised Brindell in conference with his wife. Lawes ordered Brindell locked up in solitary confinement. Keeper Curlsden was suspended.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Fishing without permission in the great Ceasetown dam of the Spring Brook Water Company, three men became trapped in the mud and drowned.

BOYS AT PLAY WRECK TRAIN; ONE KILLED

New York, May 28.—Boys at play were blamed by police today for the wreck of a local train on the Putnam division of the New York Central lines, in which the engineer, Hugh Kirk, of Yonkers, was killed and ten persons were injured.

A timber thrown across the rails caused the speeding locomotive to careen from the track, clash into freight cars on a siding, and turn on its side.

Kirk, pinned beneath his cab, watched would-be rescuers away.

"I can't live," he said. He pointed to the cloud of steam from the locomotive boiler. "That may explode any minute. No use wasting your lives. Here, see that my wife gets these," and he tossed his wallet and his watch to the pair as they left.

The train, crowded with women and children, was speeding in an attempt to overcome a delay.

Montreal—Engineers from all parts of the United States were present today at the opening of the four-day Spring convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I am willing to write to any girl or woman who is suffering from the troubles I had before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back always ached, so I could not go about my housework, and I had other troubles from weakness. I was this way for years, then my mother-in-law took the Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me, in the time I have been taking it, it has done wonders for me. I keep house and am able to do lots of work besides."—Mrs. Henry Schwab, 2711 Thomas St., Chicago, Ill.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Not only is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years this same sort of experience has been reported by thousands of women.

Mrs. Schwab is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

Such a record of cures from women are unequaled. Why not try it?

150,000 to See Famous Indianapolis Auto Classic

MURPHY TO BE AMONG STARTERS

Indianapolis, May 28.—(By The Greatest crowd that ever witnessed a sporting event is expected to attend the annual running of the 500-mile automobile race here May 30, in the opinion of officials of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where the event will be held.

Last year's race drew a crowd of 125,000, will be raised to 150,000 this month-end, if the advance sale indicates anything, it was said. The gates to auto races are opened to many thousands of persons who do not care to see the race.

To take care of the crowd which is expected to pour into the city for the race, which will be run on Memorial Day, the Speedway officials have completed plans for parking space for 100,000 cars. Besides this, they have arranged with the United States government for the use of certain areas of land for parking purposes.

The Speedway track, which has been declared to be the fastest in the world, is being put in shape for the 500-mile grind. The track has been resurfaced with crushed brick. The pits have been enlarged and the garages for the cars have been increased in number. The grandstands have been repaired and painted.

System Used in Handling Crowd

Handling the enormous crowd which annually throngs to Indianapolis every year for the race is an easy matter now due to the experience gained in the past. Months ahead of time private homes are canvassed for spare rooms and with the hotels these are filled for the benefit of visitors. The hotel rooms usually are filled by reservations made months before the race, and the year is no exception.

Co-operating with the city authorities the speedway management sees to it that every means of entering to the track is opened so that the crowds may get out. From early morning until the race is finished all of the main roads are kept open to one way traffic, permitting five and six machines to drive abreast. Traction and train service entering from the centre of the city every few minutes care for the thousands who use that method of reaching the course.

Once at the speedway, the people are turned over to an "army" of attendants. These men are selected in handling the gigantic crowd, for most of them have been doing the work for years. Parcels, containing refreshments, are allowed around the plant and the small quantity of the crowd. Because of the rare occurrence for one to smoke in the speedway, guards will be stationed at the gates. The guards are the same men who, in addition to their several years of experience at the gates, have been about two weeks of extra duty each year just prior to the race.

Jimmy Murphy to Be Starter in Classic

Jimmy Murphy, international driving champion and destined to be the next consistent winner in all racing history, was born in Hawaii. He arrived at the track early this year to prepare his new single-seated for the qualifying contest. Howdy Wilcox, Indianapolis pilot; Ralph DePalma, for years the most popular driver to come here; Eddie Hearne, Cliff Durant to Boyer and other veterans will compete for the $50,000 in prizes. In addition there will be drivers from France, Argentina and Germany.

The course record, established last year by Murphy, is slightly better than an average of 94 miles an hour for the 500 miles.

The Term Alter Ego

THE first time the words alter ego were used in diplomatic sense they were applied to the Spanish viceroys, when exercising the power of the King. They mean "another or second I."

THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Stealing away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend.

The He-Man was followed by his attendants and the captains of the village

CHAPTER IX.

AT each successive invitation she hesitated a little longer before accepting and on the seventh night she refused. Any woman can easily understand why, but the surprising thing was that the man seemed to know just what was happening to her spirit.

No stomach lifting can stand pigeon fourteen days in succession nor is there a maid that can put on the same identical clothes six half time without feeling demeaned. She knew he knew, for twice during the week he had told her bluntly to hand her lingerie to Bathtub at night and she had found it at her door in the morning, miraculously washed, dried and more or less ironed.

There was nothing in the dawn of the eighth morning to indicate that it was ushering in a day of days nor did Andrea more than turn her head when shortly after noon two bearers staggered into camp with a steamer trunk slung on a pole between them. There was no room in the world why she should connect that trunk in any way with herself even when, an hour after its arrival, she beheld approaching the magnificent and unforgettable specimen of black manhood she had last seen on the morning of her ravishment.

The newcomer dismissed the two bearers, making them take the pole and its lashings with them. They departed after one long, disconsolate look. He then seated himself beside the trunk and never moved until, late in the afternoon, the white man appeared, when he arose, saluted and then made a solemn gesture toward the load others had carried.

The white man's eyes lighted up; he seemed more cheerful than he had been in days. "Look at the rascal, Andrea Pellor," he said bravely so that the black would not read the true purport of his words. "He pretends that he has brought this load alone one hundred and forty miles in seven days. He is strong enough to have done it, therefore I know that he was strong enough to make others do it for him."

"You are right," said Andrea, smiling. "I saw them."

Spoke to the Black

The man spoke to the black in dialect, whereupon he grasped a single handle of the trunk and with one smooth movement passed it over his shoulder right side up to the crown of his head. He then marched with it into Andrea's cala.

She sprang up. "Why?" she exclaimed and then added, her heart sinking within her, "You don't think that's one of mine, do you? Because it isn't."

She watched to see his face fall but it didn't. From his pocket he took a bunch of keys, quickly slipped one from the ring and handed it to her. "Please open the trunk. It's certainly yours as is all that it contains." He turned from her and added, "By the way, I'm dining in khaki tonight."

As Andrea walked slowly to her room, clutching the key tight, she confessed to herself that she was being eaten alive by curiosity. "It only," she breathed, "there should happen to be one whole pair of stockings!"

Half an hour later when every last thing the trunk had contained was piled upon her cot, she went to the door and closed it softly; then returned to drop on her knees, throw her arms wide across the accumulation, bury her hot face against one article after another and kiss each in turn!

There is every reason to enumerate that pile of dry-goods if only to put on record for the benefit of the sporting world in general a list that it took many years to compile; two to decide what was necessary; eight to determine what of that wasn't. To begin at the bottom, there were two pairs of stout, brown, high, laced walking-boots; then, in rapid succession, six pairs of lisle thread stockings to match; one pair of boy's pigskin puttees; six dainty but sensible one-piece undies of softest and whitest woven cotton; three pairs of khaki breeches (youth's size); three khaki skirts, knee length, buttoned with real buttons and buttonholes all the way up the front and all the way up the back; four suits of pajamas, white madras with silk frogs and knobs; six khaki shirts, (two breast pockets each) one belt; three brown tissue khaki-colored woolen sweater; one mackintosh with hood; two khaki jackets (enormous pockets); two black hair ribbons and one nut-brown tam-o'-shanter.

There were also a few assorted packages, one or two of which even this frank chronicle refuses to open, but no harm can attach to the mention of a well-stocked house-wife, an equally complete toilet case, a bathrobe, a pair of bedroom slippers, and a long, flat cardboard box that had been at the bottom of the trunk and which Andrea had as yet refrained from exploring. On it was written in a strangely masculine hand: "The Return of the Native."

She opened it now and disclosed one of those adorable flimsy hybrid frocks, a double cross between afternoon, evening and elf-land wear; one set of crepe de chine lovelies; two pairs of silk stockings, one pair of satin slippers. "And he said he's going to wear khaki to-night," she moaned.

It is necessary to state that she presently got up off her knees and beginning at the head of the bed, started to try on the very last thing? She did, and she was only half through when Bathtub knocked on the door and announced, "Scoff ready." No invitation this time,—an order.

"Oh, dear!" she sighed and rushed for the utterly inadequate mirror.

Five minutes later her door opened and she stepped out, slowly like some shy thing of the forest. Flushed of cheek, brilliant of eye, she walked toward the man. Oh, big black bow! Oh, hair starting one way and going another, leaping a squared shoulder to come to rest and rise and fall against the rounded face of a firm young breast! Oh, vision! Oh, youth! Oh, day and hour of the gay heart! The man looked and saw that her knees were round, her legs straight. "Thank God," he murmured.

Dresses Alike

He was dressed as she was, tit for tat, except for the big black bow and the very short skirt; and like her his hands were thrust, boy fashion, in the side pockets of his open khaki jacket. As she came close their eyes met and smiled. "I didn't put on the leggings," she said shyly. It was as though in changing back to ways and clothes like those of childhood she had suddenly rid herself of the hardening years between.

"You were right," said the man. "They're for the brush and when mosquitoes are bad."

Her face lit with pleasure. "You'll let me go into the brush?"

"Never alone," he answered quickly. "But you may go with me whenever and wherever you like."

"And may I still call you just White Man? Somehow it seems important now."

"Don't tease me," said the man lightly and then his face fell. "Don't make me feel old."

"Old!" cried Andrea." Who could be [illegible]? Wh. White Man, we're the kids."

He laughed in his sudden relief. "So we are. So we shall be."

"Excuse me," said Andrea very solemnly. "Did I hear you laugh?

At that he laughed again, not uproariously, but as though his slow smile had become vocal for the occasion. Andrea nodded in a pleased way as if she were congratulating herself on guessing aright; it was a laugh. When the liqueurs and the coffee came, she started chasing a pellet of bread around an empty plate with a straight, small finger. "You fix one," she said, "and we'll have a pact."

The man watched her indulgently but absent-mindedly. Presently he filled two glasses. "My dear Andrea Pellor," he said gravely, "let us drink to all the hearts in the world tonight that are happy and unafraid."

She stood up to the toast and after it they sat in a long silence. It was Andrea that broke it. "You know, White Man, I'm a woman."

"Of course you are," he said quickly, a wary look coming into his eyes.

"Yes," said Andrea. "So of course, too, I'm curious."

He gave the deep sigh of relief of one who finds that the ice is quite thick, after all. "Specify, please."

"Well," said Andrea. "It's that trunk. My brain has come all undone to-night. I've puzzled and puzzled but I can't make out quite how that trunk happened."

Simple Enough

"And no wonder," said M'ungo. "It's simple enough, however, to the male mind. Let me help you. When I came out eight months ago my sister was with me,—just about your size, just about your age. That trunk was meant for her and had been sent ahead with my kit. She never needed it." He paused and added, "I lost her at Cape Town."

"Oh!" cried Andrea, too-ready tears springing to her eyes.

"Yes," he continued calmly. "It was pretty bad. She married a lieut. of a naval cutter and is traipsing around the world on the chance of hitting the right port and lunching with him once."

Andrea's hand went to her breast and stayed there as though to imprison her fluttering heart. "White Man," she said, "please don't do that to me again,—ever. You see, I've always been silly about things that get hurt."

Lovely Daughter of English Baron Escapes in Aeroplane From Distasteful Marriage

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza

NOTHING is more pretty than a child's knees. To this everyone of us who have admired little girls in their sensible modern socks and short frocks can testify.

Sometimes a little girl's knees show forth dimpled. Other children have knees that are slim and tanned. But a child's knees are almost always shapely.

This is undoubtedly because they do not force their knees into positions by wearing very high heels all the time.

The knees in their natural beauty should like the elbows, like all the joints of the body, be nicely rounded, smooth, inconspicuously lovely.

If your knees are fat or bumpy, or rough and red, why not start today to improve them?

For even though you may not indulge in esthetic dancing or bathe in the stockingless, one-piece suits so many women in these curious days like to wear at private beaches, still you will be happier when you know that your knees like the rest of your body are covered with skin of a smooth, satin-like texture and are perfectly shaped.

Perhaps there is no exercise better for the shapeliness of the knees than the well-known exercise of touching your finger-tips to the floor without bending your knees.

But a graceful way to vary it—and variety does give spice to exercise, "pep" as you Americans say in your expressive slang—is as follows:

Stand straight, with your weight on the balls of your feet. Lift your arms straight over your head with your finger-tips touching in the preparatory position of a diver.

With your arms in this position touch the floor with your finger-tips without bending your knees. Repeat as many times as you can without feeling tired. Some women practice until they can do the exercise fifty times without fatigue. If at first you cannot quite succeed in touching the floor without a slight bend of your knees, do not be discouraged. Persevere.

The woman who can easily touch the floor with the finger-tips without bending her knees is physically "fit."

Here is another exercise that will make your knees flexible:

Stand straight with your arms at your sides. Lift your right leg straight in front of you at the level of your waist. Then drop this leg limply from the knee down. Circle it, using your right knee as a pivot, ten times to the right, ten times to the left.

Repeat by lifting your left leg to the level of your waist, then circle it from the left knee, first to the right, then to the left.

Are your knees discolored? Rub them with a lemon or with a grapefruit. This should bleach them. If the acid of the fruit stings, remove it with a lemon cream, a peroxide cream or other mildly-bleaching preparation.

Too-thin knees will be refreshed and benefited by a bath of olive oil, well rubbed in.

If you wish your knees to be straight and dimpled, without the humps that disfigure too many knees, be sure to wear sensible, low-heeled shoes for sports and long walks.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

WHY THE ELEPHANT LIKED THE CAT.

BOBBY, Bunny and I often go to the Zoo, and one of our most intimate friends there is a great big elephant. We always go to see him first, and when he sees us his eyes twinkle because he knows that my pockets are full of peanuts for him.

On every occasion I notice that cuddled up in the corner of his stall was a beautiful big tiger cat. Once, when the keeper was throwing hay into the cage for the elephant, I heard him say to the cat:

"Oh, a great deal!" responded the keeper.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Well, one day a mouse got into the elephant's stall and Toby happened to be around and scared him off. That's how the friendship started."

"Surely, an elephant wouldn't mind it there were half a dozen mice around, would he?" I queried.

"Would he mind? Why, an elephant just trembles all over if a mouse comes near him," the keeper explained. "Elephants are scared to death of mice."

"You surprise me!" I gasped.

Just then Toby woke up and stretched himself and the elephant reached out his great, big, long, heavy trunk and stroked Toby with it. Toby sat down, yawned and started to wash his face with his paw.

"Hello, there, Toby! I see you're taking care of your friend, all right."

So that's how I knew the cat's name was Toby, but I wondered what the man meant when he spoke of the cat taking care of the elephant.

"Pardon me," I took off my hat in a polite bow, "but will you please tell me what you meant that day when you said that Toby was looking after his friend the elephant?"

The man leaned on his pitchfork, tilted his cap, put it on the back of his head and explained:

"Oh, the cat's a great mouser, and the elephant likes to have him around for that reason."

"What's that got to do with the elephant?" I exclaimed.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"The remedy is worse than the disease."

Is an old Latin saying that Francis Bacon (1561-1626) quotes with approval in his treatise "Of Seditions."

"These are the times that try men's souls."

So spoke Thomas Paine (1737-1809) in "The American Crisis" of the revolutionary period.

"Rome was not built in a day."

Patience is a virtue most proverbs try to inculcate, as for instance the one above, from Heywood.

"From wine what sudden friendship springs."

A remembrance of other days. The excerpt from "The Squire and His Cup." by John Gay (1688-1732).

"Too much of a good thing."

Cervantes in "Don Quixote," uses this expression in speaking of an imposition on another's goodness.

"Neither fish nor flesh nor good red herring."

Thus Heywood, a writer of the 17th century, describes a wishy-washy, apathetic person. The expression is commonly used today.

THE EARTH'S CRUST

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE proposal of the managers of the Geophysical Laboratory of the Carnegie Institute at Washington to utilize some of the left-over high explosives manufactured by the War Department a few years ago for investigating the earth's crust, is admirable. Science is not superstitious or vainly sentimental enough to reject useful products because they have created for an objectionable or wicked purpose. Good always comes out of evil on the principle of what Emerson called the "polarity" of all things. In this case destruction is at one pole and increase of knowledge at the other.

The proposed use of the explosive is in itself interesting to everybody, even if somewhat technical. An "artificial earthquake," produced under scientific control, might be imagined to excite admiring interest among overlooking powers.

The idea of the experiment was inherent in the discovery—which seems but of yesterday, though it was made deep back in the nineteenth century—that earthquakes often shake the entire planet and set going wonderful waves of two or three different types, which run through the rocks, somewhat as the vibrations of a hammer-stroke spread through a bell.

But with the studies of Lord Kelvin, John Milne, and others came a change, the final result of which was to make clear to everybody that the inside of the earth is as rigid, upon the whole, as steel.

Keeps Children's Hair Beautiful

Proper shampooing is what makes children's hair beautiful. It brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Children's hair simply needs frequent and careful washing to keep it beautiful, but fine young hair and tender scalps, cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali, in ordinary soap, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why millions of discriminating mothers, everywhere, use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil.

The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

FLAMING YOUTH

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

At Coney Island and other places of amusement there are usually rigged up large mirrors, one of which makes you look extraordinarily fat and the other extraordinarily thin. You have your choice these days of looking at smaller business mirrors; one reflects business as fine and fat, the other depicts business as having become thin and scraggy. As "backers" sometimes exhort "you can lay your money and take your choice."

Which should be your choice?

* * *

Optimists can and do emphasize such encouragements as these:

The stock market in the last few days regained a third of its total decline since the high level of the year.

The bond market shows stamina and strength.

The railroads continue to be swamped with a record-breaking volume of freight.

America's imports, reflecting unprecedented purchasing power, are exceeding exports to an extent not paralleled in half-century.

The steel industry is working as near capacity as the labor supply will permit, and Judge Gary, in a cheerful speech, emphasizes that there are enough unfilled orders on hand to keep mills busy through the current year.

Automobile production has been eclipsing all previous records and price advances are being made to be announced by some companies.

Cotton has just been enjoying a spectacular recovery.

Wheat not far from the best quotations of the year and corn has been advancing.

Sugar and coffee moved up during the week.

Copper is now held at 15¾ cents a pound.

Of fifty-nine commodity price changes recorded last week by Dun's, thirty-seven represented advances.

The Federal Reserve authorities, in giving an assurance that no increase in re-discount rates is contemplated, declared that their investigations reveal that "business is progressing conservatively and on a sound basis."

"Business horizon becomes brighter" is the newspaper's headline for the week-end reviews of the mercantile agencies, one of which declared that "more disposition has been shown in different quarters this week to stress the favorable aspects of the business situation."

The organ of the raw wool market states that "the manufacturing situation seems to be clearing a bit as regards cancellations."

Retail merchants proclaim that the only thing needed to boom their business is a spell of real Summer weather.

Most commentators emphasize the abatement of the recent tendency towards undue speculative ordering in many lines of business.

And the absence of all signs of unwarranted "inflation" in the latest bank returns is a fourth and favorably commented upon.

* * *

That is the picture you see when you look into one mirror.

* * *

What do long-faced people see?

Here are a few of the things they emphasize:

The building boom is face to face with a crisis precipitated by the ceaseless demands of labor and high prices for raw materials.

A Fall River despatch reads: "In continuance of the program of curtailment, the cotton mills in this city the Strafford, Troy and Tecumsuh mills have closed for the remainder of this week and all of next week. Several others, including the American Linen, Ancona, Flint and Laurel Lake are shut down for the last days of this week. A large number of mills are operating only part of their machinery for a full week, certain departments being shut down in some cases. Mills with orders on hand are operating their looms to full capacity." And from other centres comes reports of similar tenor.

Relatively few new orders are being placed for steel products.

Farmers are still disgruntled over the prices their products bring.

General Motors announces a letup in production.

Raw silk has dropped in price, and Fall ordering of goods has become rather timid.

A fresh look in sugar may, it is feared, incite widespread dissatisfaction among the public.

* * *

With this unbiased chronicle before you, you can proceed to draw your own deductions.

For my part, I refuse to become alarmed. I regard current condition as entirely more healthful than were the feverish conditions of March, which has overtaken, defined its course directions, but not changed its course. The indications are that the progress will continue for two months to come, with a gradual settling down to healthy, substantial and lasting prosperity. Industrial and business difficulties to battle has been gratifyingly liquidated. The monetary outlook is most reassuring. Outside the building trades the conduct of labor is quite reasonable. The railroads are doing moderately well. Any political manoeuvres regarded as harmful to business and workers are not likely to prove popular with the majority of the people, and whatever changes come in Europe promise to be in the direction of rehabilitation rather than chaos.

New York Stock Market Becomes Irregular After Rails Make Good Start

MEX SEABOARD AGAIN AT NEW YEAR'S HIGH

New York stock market became irregular today after the railroads pool made a good start. Mexican Seaboard, reflecting optimism over its new Tolteco well and prospects, was again at a new year's high at 12¾, contrasting with a year's low of 1¾.

Money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Atlantic Gulf & West Indies was off more than a point to a new year's low.

Speculative sentiment was again bullish at the opening.

Buying of high-grade rails was one of the early features, Atlantic Coast Line leading the advance with a gain of 2 points. New York Central, Atchison, Union Pacific Baltimore & Ohio and Reading all opened fractionally higher. Oils also were in good demand, Houston fetching 2 points and Pacific Oil 1.

Some of the steels were heavy, but the initial losses were limited to small fractions.

Some irregularity took place later. Republic and Bethlehem Steels, Baldwin, U. S. Rubber, Studebaker, American Smelting, California Petroleum and Cuba Cane Sugar preferred dropping ½ to nearly 1½ points on profit-taking by recent buyers.

The advance continued, however, in other quarters.

Houston extended its gain to 2¾ points and Maryland moved up 1. Gains of 1 to 2 points also were recorded by New York Central, Reading, Lorillard Tobacco, American Water Works, Colorado Fuel, American Metal, Du Pont, Mack Truck, Stromberg Carburetor Stewart Warner Speedometer and American Agricultural Chemical preferred.

Foreign exchanges opened irregular. Demand sterling eased slightly to 4.62⅞, and French francs advanced 2 points to 6.43 cents. German marks established another new low record at .0016¼ cents.

Wall St. Gossip

ST. LOUIS Southwestern April surplus was $215,810, against $2,406 in April, 1922, and for four months $2,052,642, against $116,408 in same period of 1922.

LOADED freight cars handled on Pennsylvania Railroad System continue to run at record-breaking figures for this season of year.

NET income for Brooklyn Rapid Transit System for ten months ended April 30 was $7,836,298.77, compared with $2,269,127.26 for ten months ended April 30, 1922.

NEW pool in Stewart-Warner is said to have par within two weeks at 50 cents.

NEW $3,000,000 New York Central Exchange building is to be opened about July 5.

CANADIAN BOND SALES WATCHED

By MONROE ROBERTS.

Copyright, 1923, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, May 28.—American investors today are following closely the developments in the Canadian bond market, from which blocks of securities are constantly finding their way to investing institutions on this side of the boundary line.

Bond prices have been unsimplified among term Victory bonds, are now within fractions of their highest prices of the year and about two points higher than at the end of 1922. Fluctuations through the first four months of the year have been narrow, except in corporation issues, in which there has been an adjustment to the lower yield of government bonds.

With Canadian exchange practically at par there are more opportunities for reciprocity between the investment markets of Canada and the United States than when Canadian exchange was down about 15 per cent. The strength and weakness of the investment market on either side of the line is therefore reflected more promptly in Canadian prices than it is in the United States. It is generally believed, for instance, that an offering of Canadian government bonds will be made in America can investment centres in the August.

Nearly $30,000,000 in new security issues, almost as much as in the whole of last week, are offered by banking syndicates today.

TRAVEL BRIEFS
NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

The Rock Island Lines will, in the next ninety days, receive delivery of eighty new locomotives; sixty Mikado type freight locomotives and twenty Mountain type passenger locomotives; including an expense of approximately $5,000,000.

They are also receiving daily delivery of new cars from the car builders on order of 2,000 freight cars, which involves an expenditure of over $5,000,000. The delivery of these cars, it is now expected, will all be completed by August 31st, and therefore, they will be available for heavy freight movement this Fall.

During the months of July and August fifty all-steel suburban passenger cars will be delivered, which will greatly improve Chicago daily suburban service.

In addition to the above new equipment, the Rock Island is also having overhauled 1,500 National dump cars and ten dining cars. A large part of this equipment has been returned to the railway company and is being pressed into immediate service.

The above program of new equipment and improvements to existing equipment involves an expenditure of nearly $15,000,000 in the year 1923, which will greatly expedite freight and passenger movement on the Rock Island Lines.

The Rock Island also has a comprehensive program of betterments and betterments for the year 1923, which involves a total expenditure of $6,-$30,000.

Included in this program are the following important improvements, which will directly affect and improve operating conditions:

Construction of second main track between Herington and Latimer and between Paxico and Bishop.

Installation of Regan automatic train control device between Joliet and Rock Island, which will give automatic train control system of operating between Blue Island and Rock Island, Ill.

New rails, involving an expenditure of $1,240,000.

Additional yard tracks and sidings at a cost of $500,000.

Improvements to shops and engine houses, which will expedite the handling of equipment, totalling $576,000.

General improvements to existing equipment, including additional shop machinery and tools, involving expenditure of $500,000.

It will be noted from the above that the Rock Island is obligated during the year 1923 to an expenditure of over $20,000,000 to improve conditions so that efficient service can be rendered the public.

LAKE LINE RESUMES SERVICE.

P. L. Stewart, New England agent of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, with offices in the Old South Building, Boston, announces that the service on the Great Lakes Transit Corporation passenger steamers Tionesta, Juniata and Octorara, operating between Buffalo and Duluth, will be maintained on its usual high-class standards—and that means highest quality of food and service, dancing every evening with music by an excellent orchestra, etc.—making the trip on the Great Lakes one of extreme pleasure. Automobiles are carried on this line when accompanied by owners.

ELECTRIFICATION LECTURE.

J. C. Williams of the engineering department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway has been giving a series of lectures at local technical schools and various colleges throughout New England on the problems encountered in electrical operation of railroads. The lectures were illustrated by stereopticon pictures and stereopticon slides of scenes in the C., M. & St. P. shops, and along the electrified divisions of this railroad which is a pioneer in electrical development.

AERO NEWSPAPER DELIVERIES.

About the middle of June there will be inaugurated a seven-day a week paper aero service between the Garden City Hotel, Garden City, L. I., and The Balsams, Dixville Notch, N. H.

The service will be operated by The Balsams-Garden City Aero Corporation, and although each plane has accommodations for two passengers, the prime object of this service will be the delivery of the morning dailies at breakfast to the guests of The Balsams. The corporation has purchased three Curtiss Oxkis type of machines, thereby always having one in reserve for emergency use, and so assuring uninterrupted service.

The Long Island Sound-Connecticut Valley air route will be followed and the trip via this route, barring unusual weather conditions, will consume three hours. Thus the plane leaving Garden City at 5 A. M. will land at the private aeroplane hangars on the broad athletic field of The Balsams about 8 A. M., with its bundles of the day's news. At mid-afternoon the returning plane will leave Dixville Notch on its southward flight, reaching the Garden City Hotel during the dinner hour. Two of the well known pilots from the Curtiss flying field will be in charge of the machines.

The Balsams at Dixville Notch, N. H., was purchased last year by J. J. Lannin, the widely known hotel man, and the owner of the Garden City Hotel. Mr. Lannin has been enlarged and improved this $3,000,-000 property and the daily aero service is but one of his many projects to keep his guests in touch with the outer world while vacationing among the beautiful sylvan surroundings at Dixville Notch.

"Moo Tow Eatin' Clober"

Why Talk to Infants So Foolishly?

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The brain of the human being absorbs between the ages of one minute and seven years more actual knowledge—FACTS—than in all the rest of its life, no matter how long it may live.

That being so, it would seem advisable to give the child from birth to its seventh year all possible facilities for getting knowledge. But parents in English-speaking countries never seem to think of that.

The very foundation of information is a knowledge of language.

A child, to learn, must understand easily what he hears. Speech is the tool used by the brain as tools of metals are used by the hands.

But all the ingenuity of the old and wise is displayed in attempts to keep the young child from learning the use of language easily.

We shall follow our usual course and produce an example.

We are honored by the acquaintance of a very, an UNUSUALLY wise woman. She knows almost everything, and besides being a distinguished professor at an important university, she has added to the population of the earth a goodly collection of children with foreheads that bulge out.

Here is a record to be proud of.

But this lady has an infant two years old, eager for knowledge and able to absorb it, and how do you suppose she gives him his ideas of natural history? Sorrowfully, we shall tell you how she does it.

There is a cow in the meadow and the young baby is interested in it, as babies are always interested in animate objects.

Does the mother say:

Baby, that is a cow. It eats grass and it makes the milk that you drink?

No. The mother shakes the baby up and down to start with and says:

Moo tow eatin' clober. Moo tow will bite Tommy. No, mama won't let moo tow bite Tommy. Nicey moo tow, give Tommy bottle-o. Tommy love moo tow? POOR moo tow. Tiss moo tow.

Do you wonder that Tommy spends some valuable time trying to get straightened out concerning "moo tow's" real character?

When older children talk to him sensibly about a COW he does not understand, and when they laugh at him his feelings are hurt and his education set back.

We ask mothers—and shall ask them often again—to talk plain English to their babies.

Be affectionate, make your voices soft and loving. Use the shortest, simplest words. But do not use baby lingo, forcing the baby brain to absorb expressions which must so soon be unlearned and keeping the little mind in a state of confusion, hearing one language addressed to itself and another spoken around it.

Pay attention to this now, mothers, and do as we say, for it is important.

It must be said to the credit of the French and other continental mothers that our baby talk is unknown to them.

The French baby begins from the start to learn real French. His mother may occasionally in a burst of affection double the first syllable of a word, calling a cow a "va-vache" instead of simply using the proper word "vache." But even that is rare. The French baby has the luck to learn French at the start.

Of course it may be that talking baby talk is good for the MOTHER. We had not thought of that. If the mother feels that assassinating the English language increases her passionate affection for her child, let her talk baby talk by all means. More important to a child than all else is its mother's deepest love.

To Disconnect the Body's Burglar Alarm System

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

The human body is organized much after the fashion of a building provided with a burglar alarm system—except that our human burglar alarm wires are infinitely more complex and perfect than any mechanical contrivance could be.

The nerves in the body are put there for two purposes:

First, to make possible the gratification of the senses and thus impel us to work here for that gratification, and for the embellishment of the globe.

Second, to warn us of danger, of intrusions menacing to life or strength.

Today we deal with the nerves in their secondary capacity, as watchmen or burglar alarms.

Some people imagine that nerves are put in us to "hurt." They have a notion that it would be good for us if we were organized throughout on an insensible basis, as our fingernails and hair are organized, incapable of feeling pain.

They feel that the nerves spread all over the surface of the body are put in us as a sort of vague punishment.

Very foolish theory. If you got a nail in your foot, and it did not hurt, you would neglect it, and soon die of blood poisoning or lockjaw. Kind nature gives you a set of nerves and you jump up in the air as soon as the nail enters. You have no peace until you attend to the matter.

If you eat foolishly and risk breaking down your entire internal apparatus, nerves are ready which possess the valuable quality of giving you a plenipotentiary stomach ache. That stomach ache, brought on by the watchful nerves, admonishes you to be more careful in your eating.

There is just one thing about this admirable system of nerve burglar alarms that has puzzled this writer, and doubtless others.

It is all very well to have nerves on the watch to protect us. But why cannot some method be found of cutting off communication between certain nerves and the brain when surgery or other unpleasant work is to be done?

If the surgeon wants to use his knife, the foolish nerves go on shrieking and protesting against useful work. There should be some method of temporarily suspending the burglar alarm service in this or that part of the body when cutting is to be done.

This was partially accomplished when anaesthetics were discovered, and chloroform, etc., came to diminish misery. Hypnotism also helps, although it is as yet imperfectly developed.

'HELL HATH NO FURY LIKE A WOMAN SCORNED'

By Herbert Kaufman

ROGET'S "Thesaurus" and Hoy's "Familiar Quotations" suggest various headings for featured news. "Misery Loves Company" would do very well if "Hell Hath No Fury Like a Woman Scorned" were not an even more apt line on which to thread certain recent events.

Mrs. Stillman celebrates the grant of $90,000 alimony by encouraging Flo Leeds "to go to it and fight like a tiger," and again offers to adopt the alleged half-brother of her own sons.

Her description of Stillman as a man of "fluctuating personality" didn't come out of a phrase book, but deserves to go into one. That deft bit of characterization adds quite a touch of missing color to verbal paint-boxes.

For instance, it half explains the Wellesley graduate who confesses through the Boston American that her attack upon the reputation of William S. Hart was inspired by rebuff and chagrin.

This amazing person acknowledges that she borrowed an infant to lay on the doorstep of a movie actor who had disdained her maudlin infatuation. Another generation was similarly scandalized by a conspiracy to palm off a son and heir on Robert Ray Hamilton.

Love and jealousy are full of queer but unoriginal kinks.

Old King Coal Is a Blind Old Soul

So is the fuel crisis. United States commissioners complain that the public refuses to take advantage of available furnace supplies. Union chiefs and operators have been summoned to confer with government officials in order to prevent a repetition of 1922-23 shortages.

Washington intimates drastic Federal regulations if the two groups don't come to terms.

No notice is taken, however, of suspended customary Summer reductions. Your dealer has probably notified you to that effect. Why?

President Loree of the Delaware & Hudson, still defiant of Interstate Commerce authority, might be able to inform us. That reactionary seems strangely confident that nothing will be done to reduce freight charges or anthracite prices, and doesn't hesitate to declare it.

Philadelphia & Reading, another mine-tapping system, despite last Winter's diminished traffic, pays 7 per cent. dividends on its inflated capital and informs stockholders that earnings would be much greater if private business had less interference.

Household bills would be higher, too, if this particular private business had less interference. Judging by popular exasperation, interference hasn't warmed up to the job.

Neither Republicans nor Democrats dare evade a growing sentiment for control and, if necessary, national confiscation of the coal fields.

The hammers of platform makers may yet have to pound reason into obdurate railroad heads.

Henry Collects Machine Parts

Henry Ford's activities begin to range as widely as his cars. If Sidney S. Cohen, re-elected president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, is correct, the automobile manufacturer is selecting all sorts of parts for his campaign machine.

An attempt to seize the country's screens for political propaganda is the latest reputed move of the Michigan wizard, who now invades finance and underbids Wall Street on a $2,000,000 Detroit loan.

Giving folk what they need at a fair margin of profit is a winning system.

It will be hard to convince millions of Americans that the same shrewd methods, which in twenty years changed an obscure engineer to an unenvied billionaire, can't be satisfactorily applied to management of the United States.

Tax-burdened, mortgage-plastered, interest-exploited people are dangerously ready for such a Messiah.

Prosperity, contrary to Judge Gary's optimism, is not sufficiently widespread or fundamental to warrant continued captaincy for present party leaders.

Rainbows may arch over steel mills, but the skies above wheat growers, tobacco planters, silver and copper producers, stockmen and building contractors are heavy with uncertainty. Not to mention the regathering clouds in Europe.

Time to Swap Cabinet Horses

The red flag waves in the Ruhr. Communists and French troops clash. Eight persons are killed and eighty wounded. The next uprising won't be so quickly quelled.

Poincare, unable to sway the Senate to his extreme way of thinking, resigns and reassumes office at Millerand's request. The end of his ministry is in sight.

International patience will soon exact concrete propositions from both sides of the Rhine. Civilization can't tolerate an indefinitely open wound in its very heart.

England has already swapped horses. The other allies are due to follow suit.

A set of fresh minds is needed at the negotiation table. The men there now are too weary and worn to think through muddles.

On Again to Peking

The Near Eastern situation signifies how utterly diplomacy is exhausted of resources. Greece and Turkey are all but at each other's throats. Britain reads sign and hurries a battle fleet to the Dardanelles.

The powers will be forced to dispatch another expedition to Peking, too. Orientals always respect the heavy hand. Vacillation and evasion are their own favorite cards.

It's time for a showdown in China. Further delay simply invites further chaos.

Occupation and reorganization are inevitable. Far better smother an ember than fight a flame.

Bricklayers and Dollars Still on Strike

New York bankers accept the challenge of striking unions and reassert their determination to withdraw support from construction projects.

Mortgage experts announce that the runaway costs of work and materials render it impossible for any contractor to be sure of his estimates.

Investors are advised to postpone all further operations until conditions are stabilized.

Thomas F. Lynch, secretary of the Bricklayers' executive committee, sticks his tongue in his cheek, figuratively winks, and insinuates that dollars are merely holding out for higher interest. Banks have just loaned him $5,000 at 11 per cent.

Labor Turks and capital Greeks likewise seem bent on scrapping it out—"if it takes all Summer."

Judge Gary evidently didn't include industrial disruptions in his hopeful survey.

OLD FRENCH ART IN DECAY

PARIS, May 28.—Time is cruel to many of the art treasures in the Old World. The beautiful church of Saint Chapelle will be going the way of the Palace of Versailles if steps are not soon taken to prevent decay. Large areas of its stone work are crumbling and should be replaced.

La Saint Chapelle is undoubtedly one of the most exquisite specimens of Gothic architecture in all of France.

Honor Our Dead

Editor Boston American:

Every true American citizen should be ever mindful of the significance of Memorial Day, a day that will always remain paramount in the history of the nation as long as the Republic endures.

Citizens should refrain from participating in games and sports up to 1 p. m., in order to pay unmeasurable homage and tribute to our fallen defenders in all wars that America has been engaged.

Made in Germany

Editor Boston American:

I noticed in an issue of your paper a photo of a wreath and the caption: "They Did Not Die for That." The American Legion protests the use of these flowers for decorating graves, as they were made in Germany. Now I am a real patriotic American, but I wish to ask you if the soldiers died for high prices, landlord profiteers, impure milk, shoddy clothing and mill slavery. I don't think they did.

Children Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a woman with two children, a baby boy six months old and a girl three years old. I am in need of clothes for the baby and also for my little girl. I am not very well, and my husband had an accident to his foot recently and will not be able to work for some time. In addition he was sick and unable to work all Winter, so that bills have piled up. I need clothes myself, size 42 or 44; shoes, 3½ or 4, anything at all, as well as the children. MRS. C. D.

List of Articles

Editor Helping Hand:

I have the following list, which I will gladly give to any needy person asking help from your Helping Hand, which I think is a worthy cause.

A. F. G.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. H. H., whose husband, an ex-service man, has spent considerable time in the hospital, and who, so far, has been unable to get compensation.

In Good Condition

Editor Helping Hand:

In cleaning house I have found the following articles in good condition, which you may be able to dispose of. MRS. J. P. D.

We wish we could print these lists, but they are so nice and long two or three would take the whole column. You have been sent the address of Mrs. H. P. E., who is in need of clothing for herself and children.

Children Deserted

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a woman with five children, deserted by their father. The two oldest, sixteen and seventeen, left school to help support the rest. Two others are still going to school. The baby, three and a half years old, is staying with my sister. She has a good home, but I find it very difficult to get clothes for all, especially the sixteen-year-old girl. The two small ones are very hard on shoes. I was obliged to move into a three-room tenement without improvements, and would prefer to get a position as housekeeper, janitress or mother's helper, and would be very grateful for any assistance from anyone, as I wish to keep the children together. If I could get work by the day three or four days a week I would like it. MRS. J. S.
